Germans Batter Past Liege Forts; Sweden Girds as Transports Sail

WHOLE LAND IN BLACKOUT, MINES LAID

Stockholm Alarmed Over Reports Nazis Passing Through Kiel Canal.

By The Associated Press.
STOCKHOLM, May 12.—Heavy German troopship transports were reported passing through the Kiel canal tonight and Sweden, suddenly alarmed, ordered a complete blackout of the whole country for an indefinite period, darkened the lighthouses on her east coast and announced a mine field had been laid in a section of the Oresund channel.

The mines were laid near Malmo in the narrow channel which separates Sweden from German-occupied Denmark.

Air Attack Feared.

These precautions led to rumors that a sudden air attack is feared by Swedish authorities.

For a month Sweden was poised on the fringe of the Norwegian invasion, but had breathed easier when the war suddenly turned toward the Netherlands and Belgium. It was assumed Germany would be occupied in that direction. Today, however, the press expressed general pessimism.

The government's blackout order included all areas not heretofore blacked out and came as a surprise because most sources had regarded Sweden's position in the European war as eased, with the Germans controlling most of Norway and occupied in attacks against Holland and Belgium.

Stockholm Affected.

The blackout particularly affected the Swedish capital, as Stockholm has been brightly lighted, except for one or two practice drills, since the start of the European war.

The conservative newspaper Svenska Dagbladet, commenting on the situation, declared, "In Sweden one would like to believe that our position has been eased, but the indefinite blackout which now has been ordered . . . does not seem to indicate any bright optimism for our country."

Authorities were silent as the significance of the order.

120,000 GERMANS READY TO ATTACK.

STOCKHOLM, May 12.—(UP)—Neutral diplomats tonight reported large German troop concentrations along the eastern frontier of central and southern Norway ready to strike across the Swedish border if Chancellor Hitler should give the order.

This force, estimated in some quarters at 120,000 troops, will be held near Norway's eastern border pending the outcome of Germany's drive through Belgium and the Netherlands, these diplomats heard.

MAN OF ACTION—Prime Minister Churchill struck swiftly last night against any "Fifth Column" in Britain by rounding up aliens who might assist a German "blitzkrieg" attack.

3,000 ALIENS JAILED BY CHURCHILL

Americans Placed Under Curfew as Britain Fears Attack.

By The United Press.
LONDON, May 12.—The new government of Prime Minister Winston Churchill, fearing a German attempt to invade the British Isles, today began a nationwide roundup of enemy aliens and placed Americans and other foreigners under strict curfew.

Troops were called out on special duty to deal with any Nazi "blitzkrieg" against Britain by means of parachute troops such as have been dropped from big German transport planes in Belgium, Holland and Norway.

Placed in Camps.

The drastic roundup, aimed at crushing "fifth column" sympathizers of Germany and any underground "Trojan horse" movement, coincided with Churchill's completion of his win-the-war cabinet and the dispatch of land, sea and air aid to Holland and Belgium.

All male American and other nonenemy aliens between the ages of 16 and 60 along the east coast outside the London metropolitan area will not be permitted out of doors between 8 p. m. and 6 a. m. and they cannot drive automobiles or ride bicycles.

All German and Austrian males between 16 and 60 are being placed in internment camps.

Mobile Forces.

About 3,000 enemy aliens are being interned and 11,000 other aliens are affected by the curfew order.

Alert to any "invasion" attempt, home defense authorities organized mobile military units equipped with rifles, light machine guns and hand grenades and sent them throughout the country.

Even buses carrying troops were halted because of fears that members of a Nazi "fifth column" might resort to the use of wearing British army uniforms.

The public was urged by the press and radio to report immediately any parachute landings or "unusual movements" of men about the countryside, whether they are in uniform or not.

As a precaution against possible Nazi parachute troops all strategic points were heavily guarded in the British Isles tonight and many of them gave the appearance of a battleground with barbed wire entanglements.

Men Keep Arms.

In many towns noncommissioned officers off duty carried rifles and ammunition.

The roundup of enemy aliens, affecting about 3,000 Germans and Austrians, was carried out with lightning speed under the direction of the fiery, hard-hitting Churchill and his minister of home defense, Sir John Anderson.

Germans still abed when the police swept across the nation at 8 a. m., were routed out and told to dress and pack a bag. Within a few minutes they had been handed over to military authorities and rushed away to internment camps.

Some men were torn away from hysterically weeping wives. The curfew restrictions, affecting

HE'S PUZZLED—Apparently this captured Dutch soldier is a little bit confused, as he scratches his head while being questioned by Germans. Others, with their hands raised, also are being questioned by the Nazis at the extreme right, according to a German approved caption. The photo was radioed from Berlin yesterday.

250 on Special Train to Fair Hurt in Crash

One String of I.B.M. Rail Coaches Struck by Another in New Jersey.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., May 12.—(AP)—About 250 persons were injured today, most of them superficially, when one of five Erie railroad special trains carrying International Business Machine employees to the New York World's Fair crashed into the rear car of another.

Many of the injured resumed the trip on another train after they were treated at hospitals, physicians' offices and drug stores. Several remained in Port Jervis hospitals but their injuries were reported not critical.

One of the special trains, en route from Endicott, N. Y., to the fair for I. B. M. day tomorrow, was standing in the station here when the special directly behind crashed into it.

The railroad said the second train apparently had run through a signal.

The railroad's statement said: "Preliminary reports indicate that signals functioned properly and that the engineer of the second train apparently approached too fast."

"Investigation develops that this engineer had been tested on signal observance four times in the year 1939 and responded satisfactorily and was examined on all the rules in April, 1940."

"The accident is regretted and everything humanly possible is being done for the comfort of those injured. A full and complete investigation will be commenced immediately."

Nazis Cut Bank Rate

In Norwegian Section

OSLO, May 12.—(UP)—The administrative council for the German-held part of Norway today announced reduction in the bank rate and other measures for bank credits designed to aid trade and effect industrial reorganization.

It said the arrangements were made in co-operation with the Bank of Norway, the Norwegian Bank Association and the Norwegian Savings Banks Association.

Air Raid Alarms Sound Almost Continuously in Nancy, France

NANCY, France, May 12.—(AP)—The population of Nancy remained almost continuously in air raid shelters today as alarm followed alarm. Several points near Nancy were reported bombed but the city itself was not touched. Reports circulated that trains were machine-gunned by air raiders. Nancy suffered raids on Friday and Saturday.

ISTANBUL, May 12.—(AP)—Eleven classes of Turkish reservists today were ordered to report to district headquarters for a census enabling their instant mobilization in case of emergency.

5,000 Dutch Border Troops Taken Prisoner, Germans Say

BERLIN, May 12.—(AP)—Approximately 5,000 Dutch border troops who sought to hold up the German advance on Friday were taken prisoner, DNB, official German news agency, announced today.

Reserve Units Mobilized By Hungarian Government

BUDAPEST, May 12.—(UP)—Reservists of the Second and Eighth Hungarian Army Corps numbering several thousand men have been summoned to the colors by the war office during the past 24 hours, it was revealed tonight. Government officials denied that the military order had any connection with recently aggravated tension between Hungary and Germany's protectorate of Slovakia or the reported massing of Soviet troops near the border of Rumanian Bessarabia.

'Long Live the Netherlands' Painted on German Ship

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, May 12.—(AP)—The crew of the 1,271-ton German freighter Cerigo, in port here since the outbreak of war, awakened today to find a huge flag of the Netherlands and the words: "Long live the Netherlands!" painted on her prow. The art work was believed to have been done during the night by sailors from the Netherlands steamer Manto, which sailed before dawn for a northern port. The skipper of the Cerigo put his crew to work scrubbing away the paint.

BELGIAN FIRST LINES SMASHED; 100 PLANES SHOT DOWN BY ALLIES

Defenders Also Resisting New Attack Near Albert Canal; Belgian Hero Sacrifices Life To Blow Up Bridge.

By The Associated Press.

A German blitzkrieg spearhead flanking the fortress city of Liege blasted its way to a point 13 miles of the rear of the city itself yesterday before it was halted by Belgian soldiers entrenched in second-line positions, Belgium's premier acknowledged last night in a report to his invaded nation.

With rumors sweeping refugee-packed Brussels, there was a general exodus of thousands under way last night. Many left in comfortable cars, others trudged on foot or rode on trucks. The authorities, however, controlled the roads to France to permit an unceasing march of English and French troops into Belgium.

Hardly a community was left untouched as German planes worked incessantly for a lightning cleanup of the area between Antwerp and Brussels. However, more than 100 Nazi planes were shot down by Allied forces in Belgium, during the day, it was estimated. A French communique said 30 more German planes were shot down during repeated raids over northeastern France.

The Germans have been stopped near Waremmes, 20 miles southwest of the Dutch border at Maastricht and about 45 miles east of Brussels, Premier Hubert Pierlot declared.

He also told the hard-pressed Belgians that their troops are successfully resisting new German attacks north and east of the Albert canal after being driven back from some first-line defenses along that waterway.

A Belgian counter-offensive is pushing the Germans back in the Maastricht region in a violent, large-scale battle, the United Press quoted the French radio as reporting.

(The Belgian forces were supported by fleets of British and French planes which bombed and machine-gunned German columns and strategic German-held bridges, it was announced.)

Rotterdam and The Hague in Flames.

(Parts of the cities of Rotterdam and The Hague were in flames after Nazi aerial attacks extending throughout Holland, while the Yssel river stubbornly fighting Dutch troops fell back under heavy enemy blows, the United Press said.)

(Allied and German planes battled above clouds of smoke over The Hague and Rotterdam while at Amsterdam seven air raid alarms drove residents to shelters and the rumbling thuds of bursting bombs and noise of anti-aircraft fire came from the outskirts.)

(Rotterdam defenders struggled to dislodge attacking Germans from the right bank of the Maas river. The water tower was ablaze and the picturesque city, which was without drinking water.)

(On the right bank of the Maas the 28,291-ton Holland-America liner Statendam was on fire.)

(Dutch authorities denied, however, that the city had been ordered evacuated of civilians in preparation for a British bombardment from the sea to drive out the Germans.)

Pierlot's war report was punctuated by the shriek of an air raid alarm. The Belgian capital had been attacked six times from the air during the morning before he spoke and

Changed Status Proposed for The Americas

Argentine Minister Asks For Non-Belligerent Attitude.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, May 12.—(P)—Declaring neutrality in present circumstances of the world a "fiction" and a "dead conception," Foreign Minister Jose Maria Cantilo tonight proposed that the Americas adopt a "non-belligerent" attitude instead.

The foreign minister's statement was made after a conference among Cantilo, President Ortiz, United States Ambassador Norman Armour and the Brazilian ambassador.

The statement had been hinted at earlier in a dispatch from Washington, printed in La Nacion, which said consideration was being given to a new declaration of solidarity by the Americas which would scrap the declaration of neutrality at Panama for something resembling Italy's non-belligerent status.

Need "Stronger Stand." The situation in which belligerents do not recognize the rights, as well as the duties, of neutrals, and the "aggressive methods" in Europe, Cantilo said, show the need for a "stronger stand" than neutrality. He denied it would "mean bringing us nearer to war."

Disclosing that the first conversations on the subject were held April 19, when the possibility of an invasion of Belgium and Holland was discussed, Cantilo said some of the American republics were not favorable to a change then.

Demand Growing. "But since the latest invasion with a wholesale disregard for international rules there appeared a growing demand among these nations for a new expression."

Neutrals cannot make "their neutrality respected as a juridical form of their isolation," said Cantilo. "Neutrality created to preserve sovereignty, either evades or diminishes it in present conditions, but does not protect it. It is a fiction, a dead conception, which must be replaced within the reality of the moment we are living."

Nazis Wearing Alien Uniforms Will Be Killed

French Premier Warns Executions Await Such Prisoners.

PARIS, May 12.—(P)—Premier Reynaud charged today that Germany had used parachute troops wearing Dutch and Belgian uniforms in her invasion of the low countries, and warned that any captured in France "not wearing their national uniform will be shot immediately."

(Germany has denied that any Nazi parachutes have worn other than their own distinctive uniforms, and authorized sources in Berlin warned the enemy today that "every act" against parachute soldiers "in violation of international law will result in prompt, sharpest counter-measures.")

A communique from Premier Reynaud's office said:

"In the course of the savage aggression that they have just committed against Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg, the German armies have made use of parachutists often dressed, contrary to international law, in Dutch or Belgian uniforms or as civil guards."

"The French government declares publicly that all enemy combatants captured in France who are not wearing their national uniform will be shot immediately."

"The armed forces of the territory have received instruction to this effect."

Irish To Meet British Halfway, Says Premier

DUBLIN, Ireland, May 12.—(P)—Premier Eamon de Valera told a Fianna Fail party meeting in Galway tonight that his people were prepared to let bygones be bygones once Ireland has obtained her independence of Britain.

He voiced regret that there still was cause for differences, especially "at a time like the present."

De Valera said he believed the common interests of Britain and Ireland would "beget good relations" and that he was trying to lay the foundation for such relations.

CEMETERY OF CHIMNEYS—This is the way Steinkjer, Norway, looked after German warplanes peppered the town of 4,000 with bombs as the British retreated and the Nazis took control of all central and southern Norway. In the main shopping district of the town, only chimneys remain.

WHAT THE NAZIS LEFT—A week before this was a peaceful community of 4,000 Norwegians, but after German air raiders visited it only ruins were left. The town is Steinkjer. On many buildings only chimneys remain. These are exclusive photos, just received by delayed clipper. They show the aftermath of war in the Steinkjer-Namsos area of Norway, scene of heavy German aerial attacks followed by withdrawal of the Allies. The pictures were taken by Paul Melander, Swedish photographer, who was the only cameraman to get into this area.

Dutch Frontier Troops Retreat Before Nazis

Germans Cross Maas, IJssel Rivers, Holland Announces.

AMSTERDAM, May 13 (Monday).—(P)—The Dutch high command in a communique today reported German troops have "at various points" crossed the Maas and IJssel rivers and "our frontier troops have been partly withdrawn to the interior."

The communique, issued at 1:15 o'clock this morning, 7:15 o'clock last night, said: "German troops have at various points crossed the Maas and IJssel. Our frontier troops have been partly withdrawn to the interior."

"Dutch planes have bombed advancing German troops."

"French troops are in contact with the enemy in east Brabant."

"The northern provinces, which had no defenses, have been entered by the Germans. Our frontier troops here withdrew while slowing up the German advance. Some further parachutists were landed in various places in the interior but were overcome."

"German parties landed during the first day of the invasion seized motor buses containing civilians. Our armored cars have dealt with these. The Germans do not seem to be able to fight in The Netherlands unless they can use Dutch soldiers or civilians as a shield."

"Our artillery have successfully attacked Waalhaven airport near Rotterdam."

"Mopping up activities in Rotterdam are nearing the end. The royal Dutch marine is acting with the Allied navies."

"In the interior the Dutch military command has its position fully under control."

20,000 Allies Arrive. The fighting Dutch led 20,000 British troops into their land and flood-water defense lines yesterday, and struck back with every weapon at hand at the terror of parachute troops and "Trojan horse" havoc-creators in the Netherlands' three largest cities.

Smashing an uprising of Germans in The Hague, seat of government, with armored cars and shellfire, the authorities went to work today to clean up Amsterdam with a vengeance.

While a sabotaged air-raid siren system howled crazily and repeatedly and saboteurs created a water shortage, police and troops rounded up many hundreds of persons in an overnight search which covered every street and building in this city of 800,000.

Hundreds Arrested. Hundreds of persons were seized in Amsterdam, and the high command announced that every house from which shots are fired will be smashed to pieces with shells.

Last night and again today, everyone on Amsterdam streets was stopped. During one parachute troop alarm, no civilians were permitted in the open for hours while a search was made.

It was reported that Germans, disguised in the flowing black robes and flat hats of Dutch clergymen, had entered Amsterdam in a car.

During the morning officials were silent on the military situation in the east, where the Germans are smashing at sturdy, if small, fortifications and sloshing into the first line of flood water defenses.

Nazis Claim Gains. (A German communique claimed the invaders had passed the Grebbe line in east central Holland, between Amersfoort and Rhenen, and had overrun the undefendable northern province of Groningen, shooting a spearhead to the Zuider Zee, near the great dam which connects northwest and northeast Holland.)

However, 20,000 British troops were reported to have landed by this morning to reinforce the Dutch central defenses, and French motorized troops already are in the country to bolster the Netherlands army of about 40,000.

In The Hague, things were quiet after a Saturday of havoc from traitorous German-Hollanders who first tried and failed to seize a police station, sniped from house-tops at Dutch soldiers and then tried to march to the center of the city.

The way the Dutch smashed this putsch is best told in the words of a Saturday midnight communique:

"Some Germans living in The Hague tried today to advance to the center of the city, starting from a house in the Suez kade (lower bank of the Afvoer canal

Nazis Promise Greatest Battle In War History

Germans Claim Partial Penetration of Forts at Liege.

BERLIN, May 12.—(P)—German troops have taken over the grand duchy of Luxembourg, swarmed over Holland to the east shore of the IJsselmeer (Zuider Zee) and thundered their challenge to the Allies only a few miles from Utrecht, the high command announced today.

At the same time the German press advised its readers that the offensive in the west so far is only a prelude to "the greatest battle of war history."

The Germans reported they had made a partial penetration of the historic forts of Liege in Belgium, where Kaiser Wilhelm's army was stopped for more than a week in 1914, and that they were forcing breaches through the Albert canal fortifications, the strongest line of defense between Liege and Antwerp, on the west coast.

It was reported officially that 38 enemy planes were shot down this morning, among them 20 of Britain's spitfires. Tremendous air activity on both sides was indicated by the German communique, which said 300 enemy craft were destroyed yesterday alone after between 300 and 400 were reported destroyed in Friday's operations.

The German air force continued May 11 the great attack against enemy air forces in France, Belgium and Holland which started the day before," the high command said.

"A great number of airports were attacked anew, hangars fired, runways destroyed and fuel tanks and munitions dumps exploded."

"Our own air losses in relation to success, were small. Thirty-five planes are missing."

Allied raids over German territory were acknowledged officially, but it was alleged that only non-military objectives were attacked.

"British airplanes have avoided military objectives and places protected by anti-aircraft guns. They in the southern part of the city). A detachment of Dutch troops drove them back to the Suez kade, where they lodged themselves again in the house aforementioned."

"One of our armored cars shelled this house after which the Germans who were not killed surrendered."

"The commander in chief of the army and navy has announced that the same measures will be taken against every house from which shots are fired against the Dutch people."

At Rotterdam, where heavy fighting has been going on in the streets since German troops were landed by seaplane and parachute early Friday, the situation was clouded by the lack of direct communication.

have attempted their bomb attacks only on small, undefended cities and railroad yards," DNB declared.

Claim 38 Civilians Dead. The number of civilian deaths in a previously reported Allied raid on the German university town of Freiburg was said to have risen to 35. (The British have denied raiding Freiburg.)

German fliers, on the other hand, were said to have sunk a new British cruiser in the North sea.

The high command also said one enemy destroyer had been damaged by bomb hits in the middle North sea; another was reported sunk and still another damaged by air attack at Narvik, Norway's arctic iron ore port.

DNB also announced that the German air force had sunk a 15,000-ton troopship off the Holland coast this afternoon and had set fire to six other ships.

The German press hailed the capture of Eben Emael as a great victory and described the stronghold as the northernmost fort in the Belgian Maginot Line and one of the most modern and expensive in Belgium.

Progress Reported. DNB reported steady progress also in southern Belgium and the high command said generally that "the attack in the west proceeds swiftly with close collaboration between the army and air force."

Belgium and Holland, meanwhile, were warned by an influential German journalist that they would be called to account for joining forces with the Allies.

"On this battlefield the fate not only of Germany and her enemies, but also that of Europe and the neutrals will be decided," Dr. Karl Megerle wrote in the Boersen Zeitung.

"Certain neutrals, among them in the first line, Holland and Belgium, voluntarily represented that European order which was set up by Britain and France with brutal force at Versailles," he said.

294,000 Nazi Troops Mass At Switzerland

Germans, However, May Be Trying To Bluff Allies.

BASEL, Switzerland, May 12.—(P)—Large troop movements in Germany north of Switzerland's frontier were reported by foreign military observers tonight, but whether they constituted a real threat or only a bluff remained a mystery.

In any case, the Swiss stood on war footing, with between 500,000 and 600,000 citizen soldiers mobilized and even Boy Scouts and aged women standing in read guard posts.

The German troop movements observed in Baden, Wurttemberg and Bavaria were reported to involve even more than the 21 army divisions reported concentrated in that area just before the German smash into the low countries. (Twenty-one divisions would number about 294,000 men.)

Some observers saw a possibility that Germany merely was holding her reserves in this region and moving in newly-mobilized troops for training, but using them at the same time to force the Allies to keep part of their own reserve on the eastern Jura front instead of hurling them into Belgium and Holland.

However, if the massed divisions plan real action, their drive would start from a line between Basel and Lake Constance and sweep down through Switzerland toward Geneva and Lyon, flanking the Maginot line, experts believed.

The little confederation's generalissimo, Henri Guisan, not only called every able-bodied citizen between 20 and 60 to arms, but issued 40 bullets to every owner of a rifle who was not called and organized the Swiss to repulse parachute troops and crush possible fifth-column action.

30 Nazi Planes Are Fought Off By Nine British

Terrific Fight Occurs as English Bomb German Troops.

WITH THE ROYAL AIR FORCE IN FRANCE, May 12.—(UP)—Nine British planes fought off more than 30 German Messerschmitts in a terrific air battle over the Belgian front today, while bombing heavy concentrations of Nazi troops and transports behind the German lines.

The British fighters swept behind the German lines at dawn and drove toward the Nazi concentrations. Fires caused by bombings and heavy shelling guided the RAF planes.

With machine guns sputtering, the RAF fleet dived on the German land forces, which scattered for shelter.

"But we were hardly over our objective when it seemed that half the German air force came at us," the RAF flight commander said in describing the mission. "There was a terrific dog fight, but by crazy flying, dodging between trees, and house and hedge-hopping with the Germans on our tails, we got out all right."

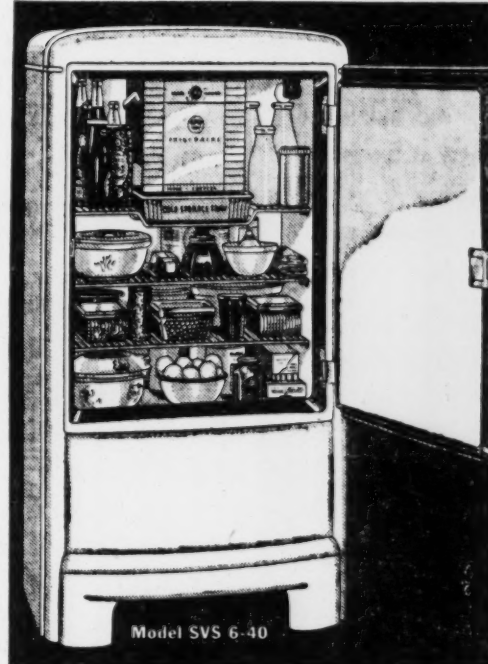

Balkan-Soviet Accord Proposed

BELGRADE, May 12.—(P)—A Yugoslav proposal for economic co-operation with Soviet Russia by the four powers of the Balkan Entente was reported today in authoritative quarters. They said the project would be given close study when experts of the entente members—Yugoslavia, Rumania, Greece and Turkey—meet at an economic conference here May 27.

"America Is Not Finished"

That a better America and better business go hand in hand was the assertion of Charles E. Wilson, president of the General Electric Company, in an address delivered at the opening session of the recent annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. "America," said Mr. Wilson, "is not finished, for it knows that there is no end either to human desires or the effort and intelligence to supply them."

Such a view should, by its indubitable logic, be utter refutation of those who have argued that there were no new "frontiers," that America has come to the end of the road in national development and that the future must be content to make the best of what it has.

Such defeatist philosophy is totally contrary to the entire spirit of this land and, unless American initiative and American ingenuity are equally things of the past, the future will prove the falsity of pessimism and the truth of Mr. Wilson's view.

Businessmen, generally, constitute the finest brain power and the strongest constructive force within the nation. They have, it is true, been handicapped by a tremendous growth in governmental supervision of business during the past decade, but the man who cannot adapt himself to changing conditions and reform his methods and strategy to meet them is unfitted for any place of responsibility.

Business is devised to meet man's needs. The horizon of public desires and the possibilities of better ways of living are unlimited. One by one the ancient handicaps to the fuller life are removed from more and more of our people. It is the primary duty of business to provide the channels by which the better ways of living, the fuller life, may come to all the people.

While this objective is kept constantly in view and while business is given fair opportunity to advance toward its ever greater goal, there is no social or economic problem in the land which cannot be solved, in time.

When the day comes that America shall have no unemployment problem, when malnutrition, poverty, disease and other evils shall disappear, be certain that the greater part of the credit must go to progressive American business and the men who direct it.

The Mosquito War

In a comparatively small sector of north-eastern Brazil one of mankind's greatest wars is raging. Less dramatic than the vast clashes of men and arms in Europe, it nevertheless has a potential result more terrible than all the wars of mankind for centuries.

The story of this great conflict, now only in its infancy, is told in the annual report of the Rockefeller Foundation, detailing the history of the invasion of the dreaded malaria-carrying mosquito, Anopheles Gambiae, brought from Africa and first discovered in Brazil by a Foundation staff member in 1930. Apparently it had arrived by airplane or a fast French destroyer. Since 1930 it has spread, despite stringent measures, more than 300 miles to the west and has infested 12,000 square miles.

The Foundation points out that the possibility of the insect continuing its invasion and spreading to other countries of the Western Hemisphere is one of the most serious health problems of today. Dr. M. A. Barber, a malarialogist, is quoted by the Foundation that "this invasion of Gambiae threatens the Americas with a catastrophe in comparison with which ordinary pestilence, conflagration and even war are but small and temporary calamities. Gambiae literally enters into the very veins of a country and may remain to plague it for centuries. Even the penetration of yellow fever into the Orient might be a lesser evil, because its vector is domestic and more easily controlled."

Almost a million dollars will be spent this year by the Foundation and the Brazilian government in attempting to localize and eradicate this scourge. One of the most important steps, and one which safeguards this country, is the fumigation of all means of transportation touching at and leaving the infected area.

The drama is not as evident, but the Americas should watch this fight with an interest at least as personal as it has in the European conflict.

Anglo-American Co-operation

Two striking examples of the degree of co-operation which exists between the United States government and that of Great Britain have recently been divulged.

For one, British authorities are giving American naval experts every opportunity to examine and study the effects upon British naval vessels of attacks by German warplanes. This is to make it possible for the United States, in future naval building plans, to modify ship designs and take advantage of all lessons to be learned by this war.

Secondly, the British government has released, for delivery in the United States, certain German products which are badly needed in this country and which were ordered and paid for before the outbreak of war. Thus several material problems of American industry have been, for the time being at least, solved, although there is no advantage to Germany, either as to cash or credit, because the goods have long been paid for in full.

Both actions are indicative of Allied desire to do everything possible to placate the United States for inconveniences unavoidably suffered because of the war.

Some of the British policies, notably the search of American trans-Atlantic air mail, have proven irritating to this country. The British, however, consider such search an essential part of their blockade.

The freedom of naval inspection and the release of German goods through the blockade indicate that, after all, Britain is doing her best to reciprocate to this country for the aid, "short of war," that is flowing to the Allies from American ports.

Fifth Annual Garden School

An event which has become one of the outstanding gardening features of the southeast will take place at Athens when, on June 12, 13 and 14 the fifth annual Garden School will be conducted. The University of Georgia offers this school in conjunction with the Garden Club of Georgia, and it marks the opening of the summer session at the university.

Each year since the inauguration of these annual Garden Schools they have grown in significance and importance. Last year individuals attending came not only from Georgia, but from North and South Carolina, Alabama, Florida, Tennessee and Mississippi. It is expected that this year's registration will be even larger and of wider range.

The rapidly accelerating interest in gardening is one of the most significant indications of the reawakened interest in home development which is one of the most marked factors in modern American life.

There has been, during the past few decades, a tendency to relegate to a comparatively small role in family life the home itself. The advent of the automobile, the increase in commercial entertainment offerings outside the home, all contributed to this.

Now careful observers see a swing of the pendulum of habit back toward a greater concentration of family life in the home itself and the greater part of this they attribute to the growing interest in gardening. "Outdoor rooms," and the vastly greater number of homes that boast attractive gardens conduce to a greater pride and enhanced care in the home itself.

Such a social trend is altogether desirable. In that it is a weighty contributor, therefore, to love of attractive gardens and to the arts of the home horticulturalist, the Garden School at Athens is an event of primary importance.

Every gardener and every home lover should, by all means, plan now to attend as many sessions as possible during the three-day school period.

The air is rife with clarion calls, candidates' cries and political fight talk. In November, it seems, we are to be saved from our saviors of 1932.

Friends of the Allies are alarmed, but this must be remembered: As the British carry on a war, the man of the hour is always 15 minutes late.

The committee for the recording of rare occasions would like to hear of a slow double-play.

The Nazis close in so artfully on the small neutral he can put up no fight. It is as though a vice presidential nominee were being notified.

According to Webster's unabridged, "candidate" and "candida" come from the same Latin root, but we don't get it.

THEY DON'T DESERVE PUBLIC JOBS
(From The Philadelphia Inquirer.)

Time for the Liberty-for-Communists-only boys and girls to get on the job. They haven't started yetling about the Devany bill in New York yet. But they will. Just signed by Governor Lehman, this measure bans persons who advocate overthrow of the government from holding local or state jobs, either civil service or appointive.

The New York bill, signed by a Governor who certainly can't be regarded as a reactionary, offers an excellent model to other states in dealing with subversive elements not above taking jobs and the salaries that go with them under a government they would like to abolish. They should at least be made to do their undermining from without.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

TANGLED GOVERNMENT WASHINGTON, May 12.—The latest hurrah-boys over the Justice Department's anti-trust suit against the moving picture industry is an excellent sample of the kind of tangle government is capable of getting into in its relations with business.

A couple of years ago the Justice Department complained to the courts that the movie industry was a vertical cartel, largely owned and entirely controlled by a few large producing companies, and honeycombed with such nefarious practices as block-booking. This caused Will H. Hays and other eminent denizens of Hollywood to put on an exhibition of pious agony suggesting a Tom Show Eliza hearing the first howl of the bloodhounds. They also searched Washington, high and low, for someone who could persuade trust-busting Assistant Attorney General Thurman W. Arnold to call his bloodhounds off.

Among others who were approached was James Roosevelt, the son of the President, who is in the movie business himself. Whether through young Roosevelt or some other channel, the movie people obtained access to Harry L. Hopkins, the secretary of commerce. Hopkins appointed his economist, Willard Thorpe, and Thorpe's assistant, E. A. Tupper, to negotiate with Joseph Hazen, of Warner Brothers, who had been named Hollywood's special ambassador to the government. Tupper and Hazen, both able persons, then settled down to dickering, eventually reaching a settlement which even the Justice Department admits was semi-satisfactory.

Then, unfortunately, news of the impending settlement was published in a movie trade paper. The independent exhibitors, who have not been kindly treated by the producers, immediately descended on the Justice Department, crying fraud at the tons of their voices. Thurman Arnold, bringer of the Justice Department suit, who had not been directly consulted by the Commerce Department, pronounced the Tupper-Hazen settlement unacceptable. Thereupon the movie industry set up such a shrieking and moaning as made Hollywood sound like the wailing wall, and the Commerce Department started saying grim things about Arnold.

Now the whole business will have to be appealed to the President. If there were some sort of sensible co-ordination in such matters, the President would not have to trouble himself with the aches and pains of movie magnates in the middle of a great world catastrophe. But, as he does not trouble to demand co-ordination, he must pay the penalty.

PURGE'S END Last Wednesday, which seemed only an average twenty-four hours of these gloomy times, was really a red-letter day in New Deal history. That evening was the deadline for filing in the Virginia primary. And, although Senator Harry F. Byrd is running for re-election, no New Dealer or administration friend filed to oppose him.

The New Dealers dislike Byrd much more than Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, or Edward Burke, of Nebraska, or any other congressional offender against their tenets and policies. He has been the most consistent and one of the most effective among the Democratic critics of the Roosevelt administration. He has hit hard and given no quarter. He has concentrated his fire on the spending policy, the real heart of the New Deal in its more recent phases. Consequently it was planned, as long as three years ago, to destroy Byrd in the primary. Governor James Price was groomed to oppose him. The Byrd machine was embarrassed in every way possible. It was publicly announced that Byrd would be a sacrifice. But the 1938 purge proved a disappointing failure. Byrd remained strong in his state. As the election year approached, the virtues of party unity became more apparent to New Deal eyes. And so Byrd will have no opposition and is certain to be re-elected for another six years.

SALE OF A YACHT The stir over J. P. Morgan's application to sell his yacht, Corsair, to an English firm is a strictly bogus stir. The sale may be disallowed by the maritime commission on only two grounds, either because Corsair is needed for national defense, or under a law of 1912 forbidding transfer of American vessels to belligerent powers. The maritime commission has approved the sale of several yachts and many merchant vessels to the Allies. Even if the sale of Corsair should be disallowed, the national defense will not benefit, since Morgan plans to dismantle his yacht if he cannot sell her. The incident is only interesting because it calls to mind the elder Morgan's answer, when he was asked how much Corsair cost him to run. He said, "If you have to count the cost of a yacht, you ought not own one."

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES

Letter From An Introvert.

Just received a letter from a fellow introvert in Birmingham who, according to his own, perhaps unwitting, admission, has been so busy feeling sorry for himself, ever since he lost a good job back in 1933, that he's just about ruined his life, his wife's life, and it is to be presumed, disappointed a lot of friends.

He says he has read this column for some time and, while he realizes it is not an "advice column," thinks a little comment on his situation would help him. Well, it isn't an advice column and it isn't starting to be one this morning.

But there are several things in the fellow's letter that have made me sorter mad and, if by telling you I'm mad he can get any good out of it, that's all to the profit side of the ledger. I've a suspicion though that what the letter writer, deep in his subconscious, wants, is a few gobs of sympathy, instead of advice.

And the only sympathy I can find is sympathy for the folks whose lives are tangled with a guy who hasn't the stamina to go out and fight difficulties, but must try to escape from reality and then find self-excuse in some mysterious personal idiosyncrasy.

Phew! What the fellow lacks is that unpleasant four-letter word that is politely camouflaged under the euphemism of intestinal fortitude.

Not Even Excuse Of An Alcoholic.

To begin with, he attributes his employment and economic troubles, throughout, to a habit of periodic drunkenness. Yet, he says he is not an alcoholic. Thus, by his own words, there is no excuse for his habits. An alcoholic is a man with a diseased appetite and you can, and do, feel fearfully sorry for him. But this man says he is a "borderline case." "Between an ordinary intelligent man and a drunkard."

Well, brother, if that is true, you may not be a drunkard, but I doubt very seriously if you are even approximately an ordinary intelligent man. For the ordinary intelligent man, not a drunkard, who yet finds that he is indulging in alcoholic liquors to such an extent, periodic or otherwise, as to make him undesirable as an employee, isn't displaying much intelligence.

He tells, in his letter, how he lost an excellent job, in which he'd made a fine record during 15 years' service, in 1933. Political reasons caused his discharge, he says.

So what did this supposedly intelligent he-man, presumed to have something inside him except putty, and married to a lovely woman, do? When he lost his job, I mean. Go out like a man and look for a new position? No, he got so damn sorry for himself he began to drink, heavily, to drown his sorrows.

Can you imagine a more babyish act?

And, as it turned out, he didn't even have the excuse that it was hard to find another job. For he found other jobs, a whole series of 'em.

Utterly Unreliable.

A chartered accountant, he finally pulled out of his orge of alcoholized self-sympathy and found another job. But he says he couldn't resist an occasional drunken spree and, of course, soon lost his new job. Employers don't want men around who are going to be away for a week or so, every so often, while they indulge in excess drinking.

So, he found another job. Drunk again, and lost that. And another. And another and so on. It's a long time since I've read such a saga of utter lack of character or will power.

Now, he writes, he has reposed. He will, he has joined the church and is "doing excellently" in so far as the drinking is concerned. But his reputation has caught up with him. Prospective employers have heard about his drinking habits and will have none of him. They can't be convinced he's reformed. And so, he's in a spot. He's willing, he says, to take any sort of job, but can't find one. So he writes to this column.

Brother, the blunt truth is, you're a psychological coward. You've played hob with seven or eight years of your life simply because you've been busy, all the time, feeling sorry for yourself.

Your very letter to this column still drips with the same emotion. Snap out of it and don't think fate has been especially rough with you. As a matter of fact, she hasn't.

Don't you know there are tens of thousands of men without half your opportunity or luck who have fought like the greatest heroes of history, just to decently feed and clothe and house their families. They are doing their fighting today at desks, behind counters, in the fields. And they're not whining either, or going out and getting drunk just because they lose one job. They go out and find another. And keep the old chin up.

There are tens of thousands of men suffering painful disease, who keep right on and stifle their pain just for their loved families won't be unnecessarily worried.

And, brother, there are men and boys today who are meeting sudden and frightening death, in the clouds and in the trenches and in the cold waters of ocean, by thousands, with a laugh in their eyes and a jest on their lips. Because they are dying for a cause.

All you've got to do is forget yourself for a little while and you'll be surprised how quickly you find what a lucky devil you are—if you only had some intestinal fortitude.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Correcting An Error NEW YORK, May 12.—A slight error occurred in these dispatches a couple of days ago which it is now designed to correct.

In discussing the athletic program or gymkhana to be discussed in connection with the convention of the Stagehands and Movie Employees' Union, which will be held in Louisville beginning June 3 and continued until the police are able to recapture the city, these dispatches said stuffed dummies, representing the American working stiff, would be used in the blackjack exhibition—the feature of the show.

Your correspondent has received many calls from indignant leaders of this distinguished organization denying that such is the plan. Stuffed dummies will not be used, and moreover, the event will not be an exhibition but a competitive tournament for cash prizes. Live subjects will be used.

Craft

Most of them will be taken from the rank and file of Local 306 of the moving picture operators of New York city, a body of men who have developed special craft and agility in ducking blows of the blackjack through long experience under the leadership of Mr. Sam Kaplan, a prison alumnus.

It is felt that members of Local 306 will offer the best sport and call forth the best efforts of the gorillas who serve the cause of labor with a capital L under the leadership of the international president, Mr. George Brown. The members of Local 306 are fleet, nimble and possessed of marvelous skill in duking into doorways, running upstairs and leaping from roof to roof when attacked by sportsmen with blackjacks, and it is felt that a covey of stiffs from 306, augmented, perhaps, by a few stars from the Los Angeles district, where Willie Bieff's sluggers developed some unusually fine performers, will bring out the best that is in the gorillas of the union.

"We never use stuffed dummies, and whoever it was that told you we were planning to use them probably was an enemy of labor desirous of giving our leaders a bad name," an angry voice informed your correspondent on the phone. "We always use the fastest and most durable live stuff that we can get, and we have found that because of their long training under practical conditions the members of 306 provide the best sport."

"Sometimes you have to chase them two or three blocks and send beaters up the stairs two or three doors down the street to head them off as they hop over the roof. Some of them are so tough that you have to practically beat their ears off, and I assure you that glancing blows do not count for anything against those 306 boys. You have to conk them dead square or they will get away every time."

"Naturally, as sportsmen, we do not like to let them only because we like to get a stiff once we belt him but also because if you just swipe a stiff in a glancing manner he may get away and lie in some dark alley or hallway and suffer for hours."

Matter Of Pride

A proposal to borrow some stiffs from Local 167 of the Chicken Drivers and Helpers, a subsidiary of the teamsters, was voted down with scorn. It is conceded that this organization, under the eminent Tootie Herbert, developed some stiff quite as elusive and durable as the best in 306, but the pride of the Stagehands and Movie Operators' Union would not permit a request for help from a brother organization. It was felt that the stagehands and movie employees owed it to themselves to provide all the talent out of their own membership.

As the plans stand at present each stiff will be required to show up at Louisville at his own expense, with $100 of his own money in his pocket. They will be turned loose one at a time, in a typical Louisville block, which will be roped off at each end, and the blackjack teams, of four gorillas each, will be given ten minutes to get the $100.

For competitive purposes the official Willie Bieff model blackjack will be used, a 17-ounce weapon of soft leather loaded with shot. The unofficial though highly popular lead model is barred. An interesting and enjoyable time is anticipated by all the gorillas.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL

A CHANGE OF MIND If it is permitted, I would like to announce a change of mind. It is a deliberate change.

It is made because the Allies again have fumbled their defenses and are in grave danger. They are not prepared and the odds against an Allied victory will grow shorter.

Therefore, I think we ought to change our laws so that the Allies may have credits and be enabled to take the ultimate in all our goods and materials of war.

We won't get it back. The Allies welshed on their war debts after the last war. There isn't any other way for it. A number of propagandists have sought to "analyze" the debt situation and to demonstrate the war debts really aren't debts. This was England's defense.

This is entirely phoney and England knows it. They established credits because there wasn't time to go through with the actual and unnecessary transfer of money. But they borrowed a set amount and they promised to pay it back in dollars. They went off the gold standard and their money is of no more value than our own.

There just isn't any way of escaping the fact, painful though it may be, that they and all the others repudiated their honest debts.

That they will, therefore, repudiate any debts made in this war may be assumed but it will be cheap at the price if we can give them the goods and the machines and the gasoline and oil, and help them win.

We want the Allies to win. So, we ought to help them from a thoroughly realistic viewpoint.

IT IS THEIR WAR

I think they ought to fight the war. Not us. It isn't our war. England and her statesmen sat by and saw what was happening. They saw it as early as 1934.

They watched the growing spirit of brutality and militaristic despotism in Germany and did nothing at all. They could have stopped it early with no more than a few rounds fired from machine guns.

They chose instead to adopt a sort of paternal attitude toward the new German government. Just as surely as the leading industrialists of Germany fostered Nazi-ism and Hitler, so did England give it a pat or so on the back.

There came along Austria and then Czechoslovakia. And Munich, where the Czechs were betrayed. And Chamberlain with his "peace for our time." They had to do it. They weren't ready to fight. They aren't ready now. They haven't got the planes and it is doubtful if they have enough anti-aircraft guns.

So, they had to take what happened. When it happened to Poland they had to go on in, even though they weren't ready.

They saw Hitlerism coming long ago. They didn't mind it until it grew too large and broke the bounds of boundary and started in on the world.

Nothing could be worse for the world than a German victory. The philosophy of "Blood, Soul and Race" is a degrading, ruthless and brutalizing philosophy. It teaches that the theory of brotherly love is a blow at the mould of Nordic Europe. It denounces Christianity because it exalts the meek and the humble.

It is a horrible denouement to contemplate—a German victory. Therefore, I think we ought to help the Allies fight their war with all materials and credits they require. That they likely will not pay these debts is unimportant in comparison with the probable effect of not letting them have them.

WE ARE NOT NEUTRAL

This is not a neutral nation. Ninety per cent of our people want England and her Allies to win.

Ninety per cent want us to stay out of war. We did not make the war; we did not foster Hitler, we did not assist him to grow great. There is no call for our young men to die in this fight. I would be just as realistic as England. It is cheaper to assist with credits and with materials than it is to see the Allies lose.

Senator Walter F. George was right, too, I think. We easily could build a great navy for each ocean.

And we could establish an air force of 25,000 planes. At the same time we could build a great merchant marine and donate world trade by the time the war and its effects are over.

Any law which weakens the United States in its creation of military strength ought to be repealed. And congress, with the example of what a real military force can be, might quit its foolish quibbling and arguing and go to work giving guns to the soldiers of this nation and planes to the pilots and those who wish to fly.

A Sequel to the Fable That Was Popular Among the Ancients

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

In ancient times, when all of the creatures could talk, the most industrious people to be found in a day's journey were the ants, who were also famous for their thrift.

No matter how hot the sun might be, the ants were afield early and late, gathering fodder and storing it in their barns.

Meanwhile the grasshoppers sat in the shade with their legs crossed, chewing their tobacco and playing their fiddles as though they hadn't a care in the world. When they saw a heavily-burdened ant go by, sweating and grunting, they called to him: "Go to it, Sucker!"

They never tried to save anything, and took no thought of the future.

But when the frosts of winter came, and the wind howled down out of the north, the ants sat by their fires and enjoyed their abundance, while the poor grasshoppers dragged their tails up and down the dreary streets looking for a handout.

And the ants said to them: "On your way, bums. You've got a nerve to ask for a share of our fodder after jeering at us while we gathered it. Do you think you can loaf and play while we work and then take from us the fruit of our industry? Scram!"

They were, as you observe, very tough about it. But everybody thought they had a right to be, for industry and thrift were regarded as virtues and nobody had any use for a loafer or a waster. But as the years passed, conditions and ideas changed and new influences came into the world. There was a new king called the Big Bug, and the most popular leaders were the humbugs who rode political bees.

DEVELOPING INTEREST IN BANDS

Editor Constitution: I wish to extend my congratulations to your organization for the wonderful work they are doing in developing an interest in band work among the boys and girls of Atlanta.

The spectacle we were privileged to see at the Georgia Tech stadium last Saturday night was a credit to our community and I feel that The Atlanta Constitution is entirely responsible for an evening that was greatly enjoyed by the 30,000 people who attended that ceremony.

I have noticed a great deal more interest in band work since The Constitution started putting on this festival. I have always felt that perhaps the public schools and private schools neglected too much the cultural development of the students in our schools.

Georgia Military Academy is always happy to take part in entertainment of the type that you had last Saturday night and is glad to be of service to you whenever possible.

TIME TO CONSOLIDATE COUNTIES OF GEORGIA

Editor Constitution: I have noticed the increasing interest of the people of Georgia for consolidation of counties and elimination of useless county governments. It seems to me the time is getting right when we can actively begin to consolidate these counties rather than talk about this issue.

We have 159 counties and as many separate county governments. Many of these counties are too poor to run their schools or properly finance their functions of government. We actually need about 60 counties in Georgia and then we could take off the payroll the county officials of the other 99 counties that would be abolished. When this is done, we would have no trouble abolishing the iniquitous county unit system which disfranchises a number of the urban voters of the state.

There are those demagogues of the state who are opposed to this progressive measure, and the people of the state should see that they are defeated in the fall election.

Plane Hits Power Line, Falls in River, One Dies

HUDSON, N. Y., May 12.—(AP)—One person was drowned and another critically injured today when the airplane in which they were following the annual Albany-New York outdoor motorboat race hit a high tension line and crashed into the river.

The plane's pilot, Louis Hatfield, 30, Rye, N. Y., was taken to a Catskill hospital, while his passenger, Miss Gergette Gaydoul, 26, of Martindale, N. Y., went down when it sank in 30 feet of water.

Britain Seeks New War Theaters, Moscow Says

MOSCOW, May 12.—(AP)—The newspaper Red Fleet, commenting on the British cabinet changes, declared today that they signify a British desire to "create new theaters of war in various parts of the world."

Laborite participation in the cabinet, said the paper, "signifies inevitable intensification of reaction and persecution of the working class."

Moscow newspapers refrained from comment on developments on the western front but gave much space to factual reports.

Majority of Voters Approve Hatch Act for State Employees

More Republicans Than Democrats Like Provisions in Bill; Citizens Hold Campaign Gifts Should Be Voluntary.

By DR. GEORGE W. GALLUP.

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 12.—Bitter and divided as many members of congress have proved to be over the extension of the Hatch act to cover state employees who receive all or part of their compensation from federal sources, the great majority of American voters reached in nation-wide surveys have been in favor of the Hatch act principle throughout the debate.

Three months ago the American Institute of Public Opinion found 77 per cent of the voters in a national cross-section favored making it illegal to solicit campaign funds from federal employees.

In a new survey just completed, an equally large majority are in favor of extending the same principle to state and local politics.

The Gallup Poll

Voters in each of the 48 states were asked: "Do you think it is all right to ask state and other local government employees for money for state political campaigns, or do you think this should be prevented by law?"

The answers of those with opinions on the question are:

PRACTICE ALL RIGHT SHOULD BE PREVENTED 21% 79%

Time and again those interviewed in the survey added that "it's all right for government employees to contribute if it's voluntary, but not if it's compulsory."

Outside of congress, the survey shows, the principle of the Hatch act is virtually a non-partisan question. Slightly more Republicans favor the idea than do Democrats, but the majorities in the rank-and-file of each party are overwhelming:

	Practice All Right	Should Be Prevented
DEMOCRATS	25%	75%
REPUBLICANS	17%	83%

Most opposition to the present Hatch bill has come from Southern Democrats, headed by Chairman Sumners (Texas), of the house judiciary committee. Interestingly enough, Southern voters in the survey are more tolerant toward the idea of soliciting state and local employees than voters elsewhere.

DO YOU THINK it is all right to ask state and other local government employees for money for state political campaigns, or do you think this should be prohibited by law?

YES -- 21%

NO -- 79%

Five Methodist Zone Meetings Will Be Held

First Conference To Open Tomorrow; Series Will End Friday.

Atlanta district Methodist churches will begin a series of five zone-group quarterly conferences tonight and continue each night through Friday, Dr. Waights G. Henry, district superintendent, announced yesterday.

Methodist churches of zone one will have their conference tonight, with the Rev. J. A. Gray, of McKendree church, delivering the conference sermon.

Churches of zone two tomorrow night will have their group conference meeting at Collins Memorial church, with the Rev. G. W. Barrett delivering the conference sermon.

Wednesday night zone three churches will have their joint conference at Nellie Dodd Memorial and the Rev. C. A. Hall will speak.

College Park church will be the meeting place Thursday night for all churches in zone four and the Rev. E. C. Wilson, of Hapeville, will be the speaker.

Churches in zone five will meet Friday night at Calvary church and the Rev. C. B. Cochran, of Bethel church, will preach.

All pastors and conference laymen of the 51 Atlanta Methodist churches are to take part in the group meetings, and special attention will be given the church's work for the new quadrennium as outlined by the general conference in Atlantic City last week, said District Superintendent Henry, who has just returned to Atlanta from the general conference.

Canterbury Asks Prayer For Invasion Victims

CANTERBURY, England, May 12.—(AP)—Preaching in Canterbury Cathedral today, the Archbishop of Canterbury said "the hour has come," and urged all classes to combine in prayer for the nation's leaders and fighting forces and "peoples who have suffered the bitter ordeal of invasion."

SPAIN STAYS NEUTRAL

MADRID, May 12.—(AP)—Generalissimo Francisco Franco today repeated orders to Spaniards to observe the strictest neutrality in the broadened European war. His action followed official notification of Spain by the ministers of Belgium and Netherlands that a state of war exists between their countries and Germany.

Good Morning—By Louie D. Newton

Every waking moment of these glorious summer days is filled with wonder and worship for any and for all who have eyes to see and ears to hear and hearts to feel. I have been trying to decide what time of the day I like best—whether the hour at dawn, with the anthems of the birds filling the universe with song and every leaf and flower aglow with dew, welcoming the returning sunset, when long shadows are upon the grass and the lark and thrush and mockingbird blend their voices in the seven-fold amens—whether in the evening hours, when rest comes again to the earth. It is difficult to say which is the greatest hour.

I have located more bird nests this year in our yard and patch than any year. There are four nests of cardinals, three bluebirds, four robins, three thrush, two mockingbirds, two doves, one quail, three wrens, four jaybirds, and several sparrows. I regret to say there are some starlings—two nests—which I was strongly tempted to destroy, but thus far I have refrained. I delight to watch these happy parent birds in their devotion to their homes. I hope they will escape the cats and squirrels.

And every morning I love to make the rounds to see how much the flowers have grown—how many have opened with the return of the sunlight. And one of the chief joys of my life is to watch the fish in their vigils over their eggs, and the tiny little fish, hatched last Thursday in one of the pools.

Our next-door neighbor, Bill Horne, is of like mind, and we have a great time, watching together our little friends, particularly the birds. All of which brings me back to renewed appreciation of Eva Kennedy's poem:

He must be near; the lacy lines that rim

This marigold are His accomplishment.

Across my pool, a quivering motion sent,

Effecting ripples, purple in the dim

Of dusk, my Master's breath; the melody

From yonder briar, the notes which

He has taught

The thrush, while He, designing here,

Has wrought

My garden green and beautiful to see.

This cooling breeze upon my tired brow

Is His proximity. This song which lends

Joy irrepressible which almost rends

My soul, it is His life within me. Now

His great creating hand I almost press.

How real, my Master's touch of tenderness!

And with the Psalmist, I say again: "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth His handiwork. Day unto day uttereth speech; and night unto night sheweth knowledge. There is no speech nor language, where their voice is not heard." Selah.

Leaders Plan 'Education' for Young Vandals

Hope To Stop Mischief by Civic Influence in Schools.

A drive against vandalism in the city—directed particularly toward educating youngsters not to deface public and private property—will be organized by a group of civic leaders at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Mayor Hartsfield and E. S. Pappy, president of the Chamber of Commerce, will take the lead.

The civic leaders plan to carry their appeal to the school department, where teachers will stress civic conservation and point out that acts of depredation aren't done in the best regulated families and cities.

Leaders of the movement say they don't want to clamp down on the youth and hale them into court, so the new method of approach will be discussed.

If you want to keep it a secret, don't put it in The Constitution's Want Ads.

Germany Orders Cafes To Close at 11 P. M.

BERLIN, May 12.—(AP)—All restaurants will cease serving at 11 o'clock at night, starting Tuesday, it was announced today.

Authorized sources said that in the serious task in which Germany is engaged, with its inevitable losses of life, the population at home should be concentrating on victory, not idling in restaurants.

IRELAND PROTESTS.

GALWAY, Ireland, May 12.—(AP)—Premier Eamon de Valera said in a speech today that "a cruel wrong has been done Belgium and Holland, and it would be unworthy of this small nation if it did not utter a protest."

Hindsight and Foresight

By HOLGAR J. JOHNSON

President, Institute of Life Insurance

MRS. L. of Pittsburgh says: "My husband makes $2100 a year and we have two small children. We have $8000 in life insurance. Some of my friends think this is too much and others think it's too little. What do you think?"

I have other letters asking questions similar to this and wish that I could give an answer to fit all cases. Unfortunately there isn't any one "right" answer.

One of the reasons why we have life insurance agents in the place of selling life insurance in drugstores or over the counter is that each man's needs differ. For example, if Mrs. L. has or will inherit some money of her own, Mr. L.'s insurance needs might be far different from what they would be if she had to depend entirely on Mr. L.'s income.

If one of the children were an invalid so that it would require care as long as it lived, this would add another complication. If there are parents or other relatives who are likely to become dependent, the situation again changes. Furthermore, $2100 in Pittsburgh will buy quite a different amount of living from what it will buy in Augusta or Green Bay.

I could go on adding or changing conditions for one family for an hour, but you get the idea. The decision about how much insurance to buy simply has to be an individual decision.

Therefore, the only answer I can make to Mrs. L.'s question is a very general one. If her husband spent the amount of time on his insurance planning that its importance justifies, if he told his agent pretty exactly what he had in mind, what premiums he could afford and what the family needs were, he probably ended up with about the right kind and amount of insurance.

I WILL SAY THIS. If he is like most people, he probably has a little less than he ought to have. That is because there are so many irresistible things for sale in the stores these days—and only one man who actually gets out and sells the idea of thrift and protection to people in competition with these things. That—in case you haven't noticed—is your life insurance agent.

NOTE: In this regular Monday column, paid for at advertising rates, the Institute of Life Insurance has asked its president to discuss questions of interest to life insurance policyholders. Inquiries may be addressed to 60 East 42nd Street, New York City.

FLIES WORLD'S FASTEST PLANE!

TEST PILOT HOMER BERRY
LIKES ALL THE SPEED HE CAN GET IN A PLANE, BUT HE LIKES HIS
SMOKING S-L-O-W! SLOWER-BURNING
CAMELS ARE HIS CIGARETTE

"FASTEST PLANE off the production line today!" That's how Homer Berry describes the Bell Airacobra, amazing new speed plane. He should know. This veteran speed test pilot started flying in 1913... started smoking Camels the same year. "No other cigarette ever gave me anything like the pleasure of a Camel," he says. "They burn slower, smoke milder and cooler. Camels don't irritate my throat and their full, rich flavor doesn't tire my taste. In 26 years, that slower burning has given me a lot of extra smoking." Before you take it for granted you're getting all the pleasure there is in a cigarette, try Camels. Enjoy the advantages of Camel's slower-burning costlier tobaccos. Penny for penny your best cigarette buy!

TEST PILOT HOMER BERRY SAYS:

"No fast burning for me in my cigarette. I've smoked Camels ever since there have been any Camels. They burn slower and give me more pleasure per puff and more puffs per pack. I'd walk a mile for a slow-burning Camel!"

CIGARETTE TAX

Smokers who live in communities where certain state cigarette taxes are in effect can save the cost of the tax—and, in some instances, more—through smoking Camels. (See panel at right.) When you are a Camel smoker, you get this unique economy—and all the extra enjoyment of cooler, milder smoking—the fragrance and delicate taste of finer, more costly tobaccos.

Intimate glimpses into the rooms of one of Atlanta's most beautiful homes.

When Atlantans say, "Come to see us" they are expressing the hospitality which has been a famed tradition since "befo' de wah."

Homes in Atlanta today still retain the inherited charm of the Old South, as well as the glamour of 1940. Furnishings make a house a home, where rooms offer a haven of hospitality and invite hours of restful repose.

Our Atlanta furniture merchants know this fact. They are upholding the famous tradition with furnishings which blend with the style of the home and the personality of the owners.

Great Britain Unites Behind 'Win' Churchill

Government Discloses 'Blasting Attacks' by Royal Air Force.

LONDON, May 12.—(P)—Galvanized into unity by the lightning bolt of the western front, Great Britain today thrust every effort into one mighty drive behind “Win” Churchill, the new prime minister.

Churchill, himself, went to Buckingham palace with his new cabinet and fighting service chiefs to be sworn in before the King. Air service communications told of blasting attacks by the Royal Air Force against German troop concentrations moving on Belgium and Holland. The Admiralty announced that the mine-laying submarine Seal was overdue and presumed to be lost.

Air Raid Warnings.—Air raid warnings were sounded both in northern Scotland and northern Ireland when unidentified planes were sighted, but no bombs were dropped in either instance.

In addition to his “war cabinet,” Churchill appointed Sir John Simon as lord chancellor, Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer; Lord Lloyd, colonel secretary; Alfred Duff Cooper, minister of information; Laborite Herbert Morrison, minister of home security, and Sir Andrew Duncan, president of the board of trade.

The Air Ministry announced that German planes “again harassed” British troops advancing from the Rhine toward the Meuse, blasting troop concentrations during the night and keeping up the punishment that kept them busy on Sunday.

King Thanks Britain.—King George received the “heart-felt thanks” of Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands for the message he sent her yesterday decrying the “brutal and wholly unwarranted attack” upon her country.

The King also received a message from King Leopold of the Belgians, to whom he sent a promise of British support.

“Your Majesty’s far-reaching and encouraging message has touched me deeply. It brings me in the grave hour through which my country is passing, valuable proof of the fidelity of the British people to their pledged word.”

Dutch Ship Reaches N. Y.

NEW YORK, May 12.—(P)—The Holland-American freighter Blommersdyk, which left Rotterdam two weeks ago, arrived today, the first of three Dutch ships which probably will stay here for the time being because of the war. The line flagship, Nieuw Amsterdam, is expected back tomorrow with 269 passengers from a curtailed Caribbean cruise. It skipped a scheduled stop at Havana when Germany attacked the Netherlands. The liner Pennland, which left Rotterdam with 492 passengers two weeks ago, is expected later in the week.

Dutch Know They Must Die But They Take Foes With Them

Men Fighting Until Death, Then They Expect Women To Catch Up Their Banners; ‘No Nazis Alive’ as Civilians Battle.

LONDON, May 12.—(AP)—Heroic stories of Holland’s grim fight against German invaders were told by refugees arriving at a British port today.

“Every man and every woman in Holland will fight and fight until they drop,” declared a woman who witnessed Friday’s assault on Rotterdam.

“I saw them crying, but they were tears of rage and not of terror. The Dutch aren’t despairing. They got past that.”

A British seaman said the Dutch were fighting “like men who know they must die, but in dying will take with them 10 of the enemy. They are fighting on the assumption that every Dutchman must fight until he is killed, and that after that the Dutch women must fight.”

The arrivals said the sky over and around Rotterdam literally swarmed with German planes and parachutists, who poured into the city and made every street corner a battlefield. They declared that some of the parachutists wore civilian clothes.

Many children were among the refugees. They were battered below decks during the voyage. The ship was bombed and machine-gunned on the way, but escaped damage.

An English woman gave a graphic description of the fight for a bridge over the Maas river in Rotterdam.

“The Nazis held one bank of the Maas and a bridge. A Dutch ship came up and fired 30 rounds at the bridge, setting it afire. The ship was hit and retired, but came back soon and again drove the Nazis from the bridge as bombers roared overhead.

“Dutch civilians were in the fighting now, and they were vicious. When they finally took the bridges there were no Nazis alive.”

Returning Belgian Diplomats Are Expected in Switzerland

BERN, Switzerland, May 12.—(AP)—The Belgian legation announced that Belgian diplomats and consular officials from Germany were expected to arrive at the Saint Margrethen frontier station in Switzerland, across from old Austria Monday morning.

The Dutch legation said so far as was known no arrangement had yet been made for return of diplomats between The Hague and Berlin.

68 German Planes Shot Down By British Royal Air Force

LONDON, May 12.—(AP)—Royal Air force squadrons were reported to have shot down 68 German planes in two and a half days of fighting up to noon Sunday. At least 25 more “probably” were accounted for, British correspondents said.

French, German Planes Battle As Swiss Fliers Watch Border

Japanese in Wild Retreat, 20,000 Casualties, Chinese Say

CHUNGKING, May 12.—(AP)—A Chinese army spokesman said today Japanese lines had completely collapsed and been broken into small units wildly retreating in central China in the Honan and Hupeh border areas.

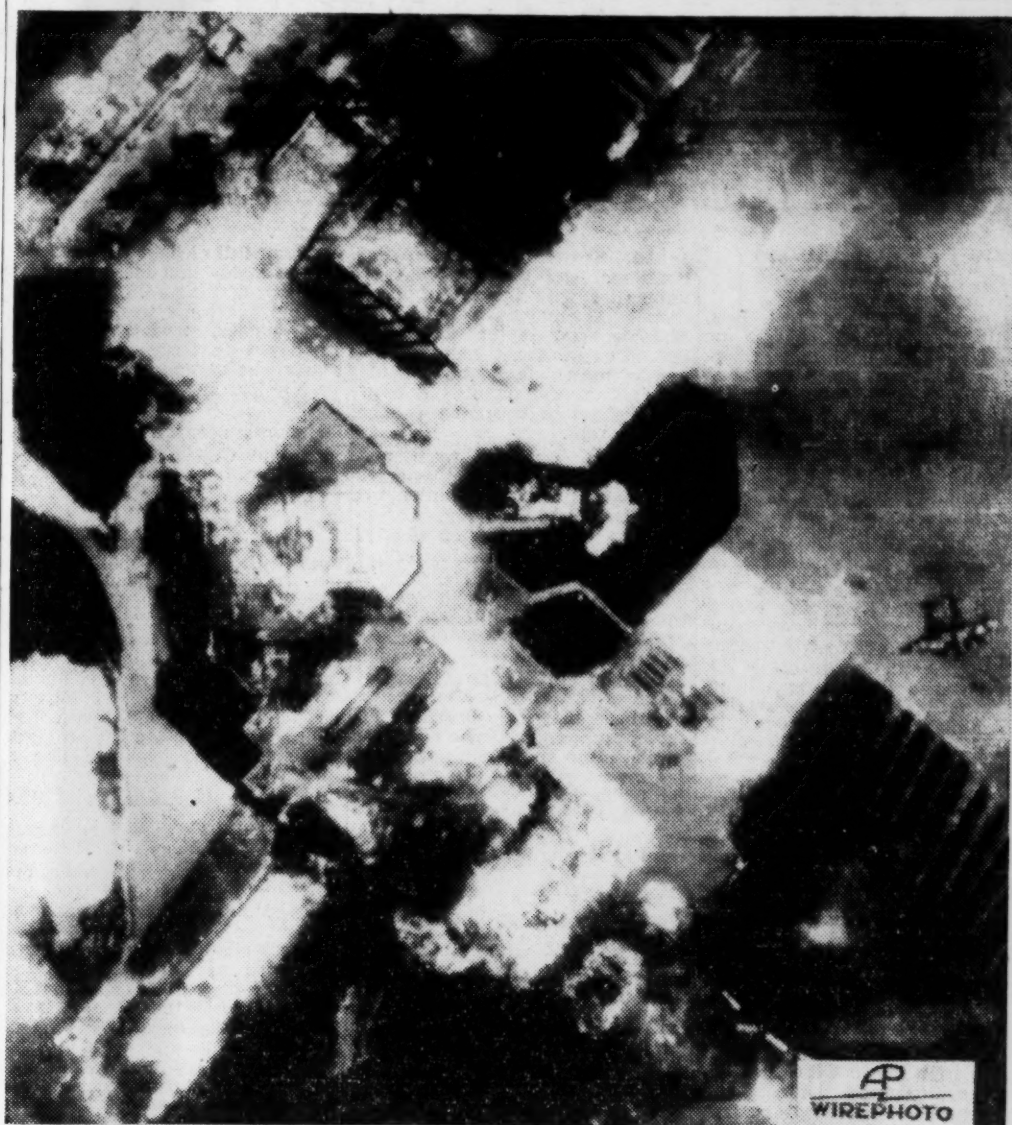

The Chinese captured 64 armored cars and more than 300 trucks and inflicted upward of 20,000 casualties, the spokesman said.

Heavy Firing Routs German Planes From Paris Region

PARIS, May 13.—(Monday)—(AP)—German planes dropping steadily in the sky approached the Paris region during an hour-long air raid early today but turned away in the face of heavy anti-aircraft fire. The capital’s defenses put on a brilliant display of shells flashing among searchlight rays. (Here the censor deleted 21 words from the dispatch). Sirens sounded alarms also in western and central France (the censor deleted 22 more words here).

GERMAN THRUST—The Nazis drive into the low countries continued yesterday despite stubborn resistance. The German war machine rolled over Holland to the eastern shore of the Zuider Zee (1), threatening a thrust down the west coast to Amsterdam (broken arrow). Columns pushing toward The Hague (2) penetrated deeply, while in Belgium a drive carried through two defense zones to Waremm (3) inside strategic Liege and only 40 miles from Brussels. French troops made contact with German units sweeping over Luxembourg.

THE AFTERMATH—Huge jagged craters deep in its runways, its hangars in shreds, this is a bombed airport. The Waalhaven airfield at Rotterdam, scene of bitter fighting between Nazi captors and the Allies, was photographed as Royal Air Force bombers roared across to drop more death on the Germans.

in Louvain, to the east of Brussels, air alarms came every ten minutes.

Antwerp was heavily attacked from the air Saturday and a large number of casualties was reported. New masses of parachute troops were dropped during the night, many carrying dummies to throw the defenders off their guard. They also carried miniature radios. Some fell in the Royal park. The Belgian people were called upon to give blood for transfusions as military and civilian casualties mounted.

Refugees Stream Out of Brussels.

Refugees streamed out of Brussels in private automobile trucks, cars and on bicycles—and some walked. Most of them were loaded with clothes and bedding. Thousands of refugees from outlying areas poured in and out of Brussels.

Brussels railway stations were crowded with masses of wounded persons and refugees. The government prepared for the eventuality of flight from Brussels but decided to remain for the present. Many areas of the city are roped off.

(The Dutch Hilversum radio reported last night that “the Germans have bombed two trainloads of women and children en route from Liege to Brussels,” according to the United Press.

(German planes began swarming over Holland at dawn and the first, a squadron of 12, were seen over Amerongen flying westward, followed by 18 which appeared over Boxtel, the United Press also reported. Later, 12 German bombers were sighted from Brandaris lighthouse on Terschelling island, flying south in the direction of Holland’s Denkselder naval base.

(At 11:15 a. m. 12 German Messerschmitt fighting planes passed Gorkum flying west and later 20 more Messerschmitts were sighted there followed by 18 Heinkels flying at 7,000 feet. Reports continued throughout the day, from Geldersmolen, Meerkerk, Woudenberg, Amerongen, Naarden, Slidrecht and other towns.

(Many of the German planes were Heinkel bombers, which flew in waves over Holland’s water line defenses from north to south).

In what he called a frank and truthful account of the military situation, Premier Pierlot said the Germans were unable to penetrate on any considerable scale Friday, when the blitzkrieg began, because of “thorough demolitions immediately carried out.”

Saturday, he said, the Germans crossed the Albert canal. The officer in charge of the destruction of two bridges near Maastricht was killed by an aerial bomb and the second in command hesitated to carry out the prearranged orders.

During the interval, Pierlot said, German motorized units streamed across the bridges.

Suicide Dash.—A Belgian officer in a suicide dash through the German lines blew up himself and one bridge.

Across the other, Pierlot added, the Germans attacked “with an enormous mass of tanks and aircraft.”

“When the enemy reached our troops in their new positions, they were stopped,” he said. The premier added that the latest report showed the Germans had “nowhere resumed the advance.”

“To the east of Albert canal, as well as farther north, we are resisting successfully,” Pierlot declared. “In spite of many attacks against the fortifications of Liege,

LONDON, May 12.—(P)—An unofficial assurance was given today that the British would not intervene in the Netherlands East Indies.

(Both the United States and Japan have expressed their interest in maintenance of the status quo in the rich and strategic colonial possession of the Netherlands in the Far East.)

“His Majesty’s government,” a British source said, “has previously expressed its interest in the maintenance of the status quo in the Netherlands East Indies.”

“This attitude remains unchanged, and it has no intention whatever of intervening in the East Indies, nor has any suggestion been made from any quarter that it should do so.”

Yesterday it was announced that in the Netherlands West Indies, in the western hemisphere, off Venezuela, an Allied force had landed “to prevent possible German attempts at sabotage in the important oil refineries” on the islands of Curacao and Aruba.

NETHERLANDS TO SURVIVE AS NATION, CONSUL SAYS

NEW YORK, May 12.—(P)—Jan Schuurman, Netherlands consul general here, said today that even if the German army seizes Holland, the “kingdom of the Netherlands still will exist.”

Declaring the Holland people were aroused to “complete resistance” and would “risk anything rather than surrender,” Schuurman added:

“Should the Germans occupy Holland in Europe, the kingdom of the Netherlands still will exist, for the Netherlands Indies, Ceylon, and Netherlands Guinea are independent but integral parts of the realm.”

Schuurman said he did not know what would develop “as far as commerce is concerned,” but pointed out that “United States interests in the Indies are very large.”

“There are certain commodities for which the Netherlands Indies are the chief source of supply,” he said, “such as quinine and kapok (a cottony substance obtained from trees). The United States have large oil and rubber interests there.”

The Germans have reported the capture of two forts in the chain defending Liege.

The premier said that parachute troops dropped by the Germans are being “actively rounded up and hunted down.”

The movement of British and French troops coming to the aid of Belgium “is proceeding normally,” Pierlot asserted.

“For obvious reasons, I must confine myself to the statement that their advance is very satisfactory.”

A noon communique issued by the Belgian army said the defenders were opposing the Germans with “energetic resistance,” continuing to defend “step by step positions assigned to them by the operations plan.”

This communique also said the enemy force “which entered our defense lines did not achieve any important aim. In many places have been brought down.”

Pierlot in his report said 100 German planes had been shot down Saturday.

In Luxembourg province, he said, heavy German forces have attacked on the east bank of the Meuse (Maas) and Belgian troops are retiring methodically.

“In spite of the many (frontal) attacks against the fortifications of Liege, the enemy is unable to make any advance,” Premier Pierlot said. Approaches to the east of the vast Liege forts are “cov-

Japan Warns Against Allied Action in Indies

Nippon's Press Says Such Step Would Involve Nation.

TOKYO, Monday, May 13.—(UP)—Newspapers warned the Netherlands today that any move to place the Dutch East Indies under Allied “protection” would be followed by immediate action by Japan.

The landing of Allied troops at Aruba, Dutch West Indies, caused grave concern here, where it was seen as possibly presaging a similar move in the East Indies.

Allied protection of the West Indies, it was recalled, was for the nominal purpose of protecting the big oil refineries at Aruba. The East Indies, too, are rich in petroleum, the newspaper Kokumin said, and the Allies easily might decide that “protection” also is necessary in this area.

“Repudiation” Charged.—Asahi charged the Netherlands foreign office with repudiating its pledge of April 15 to Japan that the Dutch government never would entrust any country with the protection of the East Indies nor accept any offer of protection.

Nichi Nichi said the Netherlands now is in alliance with Britain and France, and there was no longer any guarantee that British and French forces will not be landed in the East Indies.

“Under no circumstances,” this newspaper said, “can Japan recognize any action by third countries which would bring about a change in the status of the East Indies upon which we depend for vital supplies and where we have important markets.”

The declaration of The Netherlands foreign minister in London that The Netherlands government henceforth will place “all its resources at the disposal of the western powers,” has caused great uneasiness in Japanese political circles, the Domei news agency said.

“Fighting continued fiercely in the new positions, the Belgian war communique reported, with the defenders ‘standing their ground in spite of the action of armored units supported by aircraft which attacked our columns on the ground.’”

That the French troops now are in the front lines with their new Belgian allies was revealed in the communique.

“A French counterattack against the enemy motorized units was successful,” it said. “A great number of enemy tanks was destroyed.”

IT ALL CAME TRUE

Mr. Salmon, Miss Flint, Mr. Baldwin Have Become 'Fixtures' at Mrs. Lefferty's

By Louis Bromfield.

INSTALLMENT II.
Poor Miss Minnie had been their mistress, their charge, the figure about which their whole world revolved since they had come from Ireland long ago. They had seen her grow from a thin, delicate middle-aged spinster into an old lady, waiting upon her, worrying about her health.

They had both come home to poor Miss Minnie's house from their weddings, in the old days when it was a grand house on Murray Hill—Mrs. Lefferty married to Miss Minnie's butler and Maggie to Mr. Ryan, the coachman. In her house Maggie's Sarah Jane and Mrs. Lefferty's Tommy had been born. In her house Mr. Lefferty had died of pneumonia.

And then the day after the funeral Miss Minnie's lawyer, old Mr. Prendergast, came to the house and called Mrs. Lefferty and Maggie into the drawing-room and told them that Miss Minnie had left the house to the two of them with everything in it and all the money she had left from the great fortune founded by her grandfather which, if everything went well, would be about enough to pay the taxes and insurance.

When Maggie and Mrs. Lefferty were left the house, there seemed only one thing to do in order to keep it going and that was to open a boarding house. It was all there, ready and waiting, furniture and all. It was Maggie's opinion that poor Miss Minnie had left them the house in the hope that they would go on living there.

Three years after Miss Minnie's death, they took in Mr. Van Diver, who, for 40 years, had been devoted to their late mistress. From the beginning the old gentleman was happy. He was gentle and retiring, and as Mrs. Lefferty said, "He gave class to the house."

Mr. Van Diver, like poor Miss Minnie, belonged to a world that had vanished, and Maggie and Mrs. Lefferty and their boarding house were swiftly becoming as odd and incongruous in the New York of the '30s as the horseless carriage which frightened Mr. Ryan's horse and killed him had been in the New York of the '90s.

And so, slowly, they had come to be a shelter and a refuge for those who, in the march of time, had lagged behind, and who found in Turkey-red carpets and high ceilings, Pullman drawing rooms and old-fashioned chandeliers a refuge and a solace which they could not find in hotels and furnished flats.

That was why Miss Flint had come to them, and why, after nine years, she was still with them. At her life she had been a "sewing woman" who went out by the day to make the dresses of whole families in the days when the rows of brownstone houses lay monotonous and respectable in a gigantic gridiron across the whole of Manhattan north of 34th street. But slowly everything had changed for Miss Flint. People no longer had in a sewing woman spring and fall to stay day after day, gossiping, wielding her scissors, her mouth full of pins.

or sea. She did it herself in the bathroom, and because she was unfamiliar with the art of hair-dressing, she may have been guilty of some error in the use of the dye. In any case, the unnaturalness of the shade did not trouble her; rather, she flaunted it as if she thought it becoming to her raddled face.

She did her own room and mended the sheets and pillowcases and napkins as a contribution toward her board and lodging. She spent no money except on whisky, which she used "medicinally."

And then there was Mr. Boldini, whom Mrs. Lefferty and Maggie sometimes called with a kind of pride, "the Great Boldini." He was not much better paid than Miss Flint or Mr. Van Diver, but they were attached to him because he'd been their first boarder. In those prosperous days he had been in and out a good deal, now staying for a week, now away on tour for four or five weeks at a time. But, as the years passed, his engagements grew fewer and fewer until at last he became a "permanent."

He was a tall man of about 60, who looked rather like a bloodhound with large hypnotic Mussolini eyes, a sallow skin and hair which he wore very long and, like Miss Flint, dyed to give himself a youthful appearance. It was the Great Boldini who, as the Original Boarder, occupied what had once been poor Miss Minnie's sitting-room at the front of the house, overlooking the picture theater so much frequented by Mrs. Lefferty, but the room no longer bore, save in shape, the slightest resemblance to the room where Miss Minnie spent the last years of her life. The closets which once contained her starched and whaleboned clothing were now filled with costumes, Spanish, Turkish, Indian and Chinese, together with a great many which some customer in a moment of fantasy had created as Roman.

The shelves on which Miss Minnie's hats once stood were burdened with turbans, berets, Roman helmets and headresses with plumes, carefully put away against the day when Mr. Boldini would stage his great comeback and be able to pay Mrs. Lefferty and Maggie all he owed.

In one corner of the room there was a large and shabby basket with a cushion in it. Here slept Fanto, Mr. Boldini's poodle. He was no longer a young dog, for he had already had a career as part of his master's act in the days when vaudeville was still prosperous; but despite his rheumatism, he was as clever as he had ever been and none of his tricks had been forgotten. Sometimes he performed with Mr. Boldini at children's parties where he always experienced a great success than his master. For Fanto Mr. Boldini charged extra. His agents announced him as "The Great Boldini with Fanto, the World's Most Extraordinary Dog. Fifty Dollars. Without Fanto, Thirty-five Dollars." The billing was incorrect, for of the two Fanto was certainly the star and always had much the greater success.

In the beginning Mrs. Lefferty had been dubious about allowing a dog in the house. But once Fanto was allowed inside the door he made his own place forever secure.

Mr. Rene Salmon, nee Solomon, was financially speaking, the rod and staff of the establishment. Luckily, for he was a poet, he received three hundred dollars a month quite regularly from his father, who owned the prosperous Boston store in Great Falls, Ind.

Mr. Salmon, the one-time Joseph Solomon, like the others at Mrs. Lefferty's, was a relic, although of a vintage somewhat later than that of Miss Flint and old Mr. Van Diver. He had begun his career a little before the turn of the century when Mouquin's was Mouquin's and poets were creatures full of light who dressed in such a way that there could be no doubt of their calling. At that time he had come fresh from the west—a dark, slender, good-looking boy with large gazelle eyes, who attracted notice as much by his physical beauty as by his talents.

He wrote poems about the Highway and Golden Girls and the Joy of Living, for at that time, long before the war, New York was a joyous place, comfortable and secure and gentle, where joy might still be found in living, not the frantic excitement of life which left Mr. Salmon, as a poet past middle age, bewildered, frustrated and stranded, but a gentle, rich kind of joy. Life was easy then; there was always plenty of women, good wine and tobacco and talk, and on the $300 a month which came from the Boston store in Great Falls, he lived like a king.

Then the war came, and that lovely world of Golden Girls and the Joy of Living was shattered beyond all repair, and when the bewildered Mr. Salmon awakened among the fragments, he was over 40 and no longer a gazelle-eyed boy but a middle-aged man with a paunch and bags beneath the gazelle eyes, and Greenwich Village had taken the place of Mouquin's. Luckily, he still had enough adaptability to cope with the situation, and before long he was sitting in a room in Eighth street surrounded by another group of admiring ladies—not laund New York females with salons, but plain ladies no longer in their first youth who had come from comfortable homes in the middle west and New England to be "free" in the village.

Despite his paunch and the bags under his eyes, Rene Salmon was not yet out of the running, for he had two great advantages—his three hundred a month, which was about one hundred times as much money as anyone else in the Village possessed, and a wonderful technique, learned from the ladies of the good old Golden Girl period. And so for a time he became a kind of king in a flat painted black and orange, where there was always plenty of cigarettes and gin and whisky.

And then, after a little while, that world crashed, too. It was the tourists and the uptown drunks and prohibition that ruined the Village. It became intolerable to Mr. Salmon, and it had proved too great a strain on his health and a left him with dyspepsia and a tendency to bilious attacks as well as forty or fifty extra pounds of weight, which made him seem less and less like a poet and more and more like Mr. Solomon, who ran the Boston Store in Great Falls. It was too late for him to change again, so he went into retreat, temporarily, he thought, at Mrs. Lefferty's.

He was very happy at Mrs. Lefferty's. In that obsolete establishment, where time stood still, he found again something of the peace and security of the old days at the turn of the century.

Mr. Salmon wore his hair long and "touched it up," but he was a little bald in front and, despite the flowing black tie and the large black felt hat which screamed "Poet" at every passer-by, he no longer looked like a gazelle-eyed boy poet but a prosperous businessman who needed a haircut. For a year or more he had written almost no verse but was engaged upon his memoirs.

Continued Tomorrow.

Your Own Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Avoid getting into disputes or having sharp words previous to 1:27 p. m. Curb overactivity, but after that hour, favor dealer with odds people and advancing your affairs in constructive matters.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—This is a good day to put into effect any new plans upon which you have been working, especially plans that have been held up, or possibly you thought had been "washed out."

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—It is not the best time to seek favors previous to 2 p. m., but the remainder of the day favors minor matters, mechanical and industrial works and financial matters.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—Do not count too strongly on things going your way today. New beginnings are apt to meet delays. You may feel impatient and highstrung, so exercise caution in all matters.

July 23rd and Aug. 22nd (LEO)—A great deal can be accomplished in artistic, inventive or scientific work. This is an auspicious day for dealings with older people and old matters relating to home and land.

Aug. 23rd and Sept. 22nd (VIRGO)—Conservative and stable people will be an inspiration in your affairs. Writings, communications, changes, new attachments are favored.

Sept. 23rd and Oct. 22nd (LIBRA)—The entire day favors going to routine. Do not allow yourself to be persuaded against your better judgment, into entering into new affairs.

Oct. 23rd and Nov. 21st (SCORPIO)—High tension may cause you to have irritable feelings. If you do not become too aggressive, favorable dealings may be made with people who are in power and in sound affairs.

Nov. 22nd and Dec. 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—Drastic remarks and important decisions should be guarded against previous to 2:26 p. m. Afterwards favorable results should be obtained from communications, dealings with close relatives, travel.

Dec. 22nd and Jan. 19th (CAPRICORN)—Previous to 6:28 p. m. social duties, domestic affairs and work requiring gentility will make progress. Avoid carelessness later.

Jan. 20th and Feb. 18th (AQUARIUS)—Your mental faculties are very active today, but if you avoid hasty and impulsive action, you can push your affairs with success.

Feb. 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—You may have a tendency to run to extremes today, thereby causing you to sudden and premature action. Use discretion and be conservative in all things.

THEATER—Loretta Young will play the attractive young lady who couldn't tell the truth about anything with Fred MacMurray as her honest lawyer-husband when "True Confession" is presented by the Radio Theater during its broadcast to be heard over WGST at 8 o'clock tonight.

Miss Young is cast in the role of Helen Bartlett with Fred MacMurray as Ken Bartlett, the same part he had in the motion picture version. Helen has every desire of helping her struggling young lawyer husband get ahead, but he sticks very firmly to his rule that a woman's place is in the home.

CONCERT—Harvey S. Firestone Jr., will pay tribute to King Cotton and to the millions of workers associated with the cotton industry during the broadcast of the Monday Concert program over WSB at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Richard Crooks, distinguished tenor star of the Metropolitan Opera, will be heard as soloist with the symphony orchestra of 70 members under the direction of Alfred Wallenstein.

The program includes: Overture to "Zampa," by Harold. (Orchestra). "Aloha," Traditional. (Richard Crooks). "Cannon," by McDonald. (Orchestra). "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming," by Foster. (Jeannie with the Light Brown Hair). "Faust," by Foster. (Richard Crooks). "Faust," by Gounod. (Orchestra). "Le Reve," from "Mignon," by Massenet.

TUNE-UP—The voices of Walt Disney's famous characters, Donald Duck, Clara Cluck, J. Worthington Foulfellow and Jiminy Cricket, will be heard on the broadcast of "Tune-Up Time" from Hollywood to be heard over WGST at 7 o'clock tonight, when their owners make a personal appearance in an all-Disney program to be presented by Maestro Andre Kostelanetz for the last "Time-Up Time" broadcast from Hollywood. Clarence Nash as Donald Duck, Florence Gill, who is Clara Cluck, Walter Catlett, the J. Worthington Foulfellow of "Pinocchio," and Cliff Edwards, who played Jiminy Cricket in the same film, will join Tony Martin and the "Tune-Up Time" cast for a gala broadcast of songs and chit-chat.

The program includes: "High Ho" from "Snow White" (Tony Martin, Chorus and Orchestra). "Some Day My Prince Will Come" from "Snow White" (Trio of Original Disney Voices). "The Three Little Pigs" (Trio of Original Disney Voices). "Ricochet" from "Farmyard Symphony" (Quartet of Original Disney Voices). "One Song" from "Snow White" (Tony Martin).

"Waltz of Flowers" (Tschakowsky, from new, unreleased Disney picture, working title, "Concert Feature," Kostelanetz and Orchestra). "Closing Medley from 'Pinocchio'." "Hey Diddle Diddle" (J. Worthington Foulfellow).

"Give a Little Whistle" (Jimmy Cricket). "When You Wish Upon a Star" (Tony Martin).

TELEPHONE HOUR—James Melton, tenor, will sing Tschakowsky's "Air de Lenski" as the vocal highlight of the Telephone Hour at 7 o'clock tonight.

James Melton, soprano, and the concert orchestra under the direction of Don Voorhees, also will be featured. The program includes: "Fetes" by Debussy. (Orchestra). "Tales From the Vienna Woods," by Strauss. (Orchestra). "Du bist die Ruh," by Schubert. (Orchestra). "Air de Lenski" from "Eugen Onegin," by Tschakowsky. (James Melton). "Loch Lomond," Scotch Air. Chorus and Orchestra.

"The Touch of Your Hand" from "Robert," by Kern. (James Melton and Francis White).

Let Roselle the Hatter Clean and Block Your Panama

With Summer Now at Hand Be Head Wise

Roselle Now Featuring the Reconditioning of Panama Hats.

How about that Panama hat of yours? Does it need cleaning, blocking, and otherwise renovated for the coming season's wear?

Well, here's a friendly tip to the possessors of this type of headwear—and now's the time to take advantage of the advice given.

Roselle, the Hatter, at 42 North Forsyth street, knows exactly what to do with that Panama—or with any other type and style of hats. He also handles and shapes and cleans all types of hats for the ladies. He has been engaged in this business for many years. But listen to what he says about that Panama hat of yours:

"Panamas are cleaned and bleached in our plant without destructive acids of any kind, without whitewash of any kind. We guarantee this in cleaning or renovating any hat, as far as that is concerned, and thus we make our process one of the safest in the south."

As the summer season is fast approaching Roselle's hat renovating place at 42 Forsyth street becomes a busy plant.

From Atlanta customers and from wholesale customers throughout the southeast Roselle and his force of expert hat renovators are constantly receiving a flow of hats—Panamas, hard straws, felts, and such.

Roselle declares that the same kind of equipment and the same processes used in the manufacture of new hats are used in the renovation, cleaning and blocking of hats at his Forsyth street plant.

In his plant is seen the very latest lat-blocking unit, designed and perfected in Roselle's factory in Louisville, Ky., operated by Tony F. Roselle Sr., and where the Atlanta hatter received his training.

Showing the new service station opened Saturday by Brooks-Shatterly in Hapeville, located corner Central and Virginia avenues. It was largely patronized on opening day. H. E. McBrayer is the manager.

Lyle & Gaston Able To Render Fine Service

Entire Plant and Laboratory Has Been Recently Remodeled.

The entire plant and laboratory of Lyle & Gaston, at 227 1-2 Pryor street, S. W., has recently been remodeled and new equipment added to speed up their service to their more than 600 L. & G. New Service Station Opens At Hapeville

Brooks-Shatterly Offering Motor Service in Near-By City.

With a large patronage and a cordial welcome, Brooks-Shatterly opened another big branch of their complete service stations at Hapeville Saturday. The new location, at which a most modern and up-to-date structure has been erected, is at the corner of Central and Virginia avenues. Throughout the entire day Saturday and until closing time Saturday night the trained force of Brooks-Shatterly was busy serving the motorist public at the new place.

The Hapeville station will carry a complete line of the things that motorists are mostly interested in—Woco gas, Toluene motor oil, etc., and are adequately fixed for all kinds of lubrication, washing service, recapping of tires, and the like, just as they have been doing so long at their headquarters, corner Walton and Spring streets. In addition to all the service that could be demanded of motorists, the Hapeville station will carry a complete line of United States tires—the tires that are known all over the country and are popular with car owners.

The manager at the Hapeville station is H. E. McBrayer, well known and experienced in station service. He cordially invites his many friends to stop over or drive by his new place and let him have the pleasure of rendering them prompt and high-class service.

Another new station recently opened by Brooks-Shatterly is at Piedmont and Boulevard. There Sam West, as manager, is looking after the needs of motorists throughout that North Side section. His station is amply equipped for all types of service, such as modern stations give, and handles the same type of oils and gas as at other Brooks-Shatterly stations, as well as a complete line of United States tires.

P.-T. A. NAMES OFFICERS.

POWDER SPRINGS, May 12.—Newly elected officers for the Powder Springs school P.-T. A. include: Mrs. H. R. Johnson, president; Mrs. R. J. Smith, vice president; Miss Mary Miller, secretary; and Mrs. J. F. Cobb, treasurer.

Lyle & Gaston offer a competitive service, four-day delivery narrow margin prints. This service is 25 cents for developing and printing any standard size six or eight-exposure roll. Reprints on this service are 3 cents each. You will find this the best 25-cent work obtainable. However, for the more critical, who want the best, we recommend the panel art service at standard prices.

Your Mother's Day film deserves the very best developing and printing. Leave them at your nearest L. & G. station and specify the panel art prints. You will be delighted with the results.

PEACHTREE CHRISTIAN CHURCH—Atlanta's beautiful Fifteenth Century English Gothic church building. Its members celebrated yesterday their 15th anniversary as a congregation.

Peachtree Christian Church Celebrates 15th Anniversary

By PRESS HUDDLESTON.

Members of the Peachtree Christian church, Peachtree street at Spring, celebrated yesterday their 15th anniversary as a congregation, having had their first meeting on "Mother's Day" in 1925 at the Atlanta Woman's Club.

Dr. Robert W. Burns, pastor, preached a sermon interpreting the developments of these years under the title, "The Heavenly Vision," in which he paid tribute to Dr. L. O. Bricker, under whose leadership the congregation was established and the building erected. Dr. and Mrs. Bricker are now living in Miami Beach, Fla., but expect to return for a visit next week.

The congregation raised nearly half a million dollars to erect the beautiful 15th century English Gothic church building at the corner of Peachtree and Spring streets, which is free of all building debt.

Special attention has centered on the glorious windows created by William Glasby, of Horsham, England, and given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Goodman, Mrs. Everett Strupper, Mrs. Ida Chamberlin, Mrs. F. M. Robinson, Dr. and Mrs. Bricker, the Woman's Council and the children of the church.

Tower chimes ring out each day their message of religious appeal and on Sunday mornings are broadcast over radio station WSE from 9:15 to 9:30 o'clock. These were a gift of Joseph D. Rhodes and Mrs. Bricker, in their tribute to their father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Rhodes.

Mr. Rhodes had made the largest single contribution to the building fund, having paid about one-third of the total cost of the entire property.

In July, 1930, Dr. Burns became the resident minister. The church has grown steadily until now there are 1,050 members, with a program constantly expanding in significant service.

Members of this magnificent church structure need have no fear of damage to its beautiful interior from the elements for the next 10 years—or even for many more years than that.

The Charles N. Walker Roofing Company has just completed re-roofing the structure, and, according to officials and other who have inspected the work, it has been a remarkably well-done job.

The Walker company enjoys a long period of a third of a century of business integrity in applying roofs in the Southeast. Mr. Walker and his efficient roofers have applied roofs to many important buildings throughout the South-east.

Property owners—those who bear the cost of roof work—realize that a 10-year guarantee, such as the Walker company gives, or when given by any roofing concern, is worth no more than the reputation of the firm or individual giving the guarantee. The reputation of the Walker Roofing Company, with its 33 years of prestige and experience, makes its guarantee freely accepted by property owners. They know that the responsibility for roof protection for their homes and buildings is safe in the hands of Charlie Walker.

New Louisiana Regime Must Raise Millions

Legislature Meets Today To Clean Up After Long's Dictatorship.

BATON ROUGE, La., May 12. (P)—Finance and reform are the two gigantic tasks facing Louisiana's legislature which convenes at noon tomorrow in 60-day biennial session.

Governor-elect Sam H. Jones, who will become the state's forty-ninth chief executive Tuesday, looks toward the assembly for aid in cleaning up after the late Huey Long's smashed political dictatorship.

Besides abolishing certain tax sources, the assembly will be asked to furnish funds for fulfilling the new administration's campaign pledges.

Observers believe that between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000 in new taxes may have to be levied if all new administration's planks are to be put into effect.

Jones is pledged to eliminate the 1 per cent sales tax, which has been yielding $8,000,000 a year, and scale down auto license costs to a flat $3 a year, which will reduce license fees receipts by $3,000,000.

Even with these $9,000,000 revenues, the state administration under Governor-elect Richard W. Leche and Earl K. Long ran up a floating debt of more than $4,000,000, which the new administration must meet.

Public schools need $4,000,000 extra money to maintain the present educational system and the batch of college buildings recently completed at a cost of $10,000,000. This would also enable the new Governor to grant the long-sought salary raises for teachers and school bus drivers.

DEBATER—Jack Trimpi, of Atlanta, has been named medal winner in the traditional John M. Proctor debate for the championship at Darlington School, Rome.

Atlanta Boy Wins Medal as Debater

Jack Trimpi, of Atlanta, has been named medal winner in the traditional John M. Proctor debate for the school championship at Darlington School, Rome, it was announced yesterday.

Trimpi, with Allen Colley, of Greenville, as his colleague, successfully defended the negative side on the question of government ownership of railroads. The losers were Billy Wilcox, of Elberton, and Bruce Walls, of Greensboro, N. C.

Because of the increasing number of motorists interested in Biblical geography, Syria has improved a road leading to historical sites.

Atlanta Joins In Observance Of Mother's Day

Special Services Held in Churches; 1,000 at Park Program.

The name of mother—glorified in song and verse for ages past—received another tribute yesterday as all Atlanta paused in observance of another Mother's Day.

Gathering in churches, in homes and in special assemblies, men, women and children heard the name of mother extolled as they took time to remember all mothers—both living and dead.

Every pastor in the city yesterday devoted his sermon to her.

At Piedmont park, more than 1,000 persons sat in reverence while the Atlanta Pioneer Women's Society staged its annual service honoring mothers.

Occupying the seat of honor was Mrs. Charles J. Oliver, 92-year-old mother. Representing the sweetness and self-sacrifice of all mothers, Mrs. Oliver was presented with an old-fashioned bouquet symbolical of mother love and affection.

Music by the Georgia State Girls Military Band, a special solo by Clifford Skipper, Atlanta singer; prayer by the Rev. Walt Holcomb, pastor of the Calvary Methodist church, and an address by A. S. Perry, of Cuthbert, Ga., completed the program.

A special Mother's Day breakfast was held at the Y. M. C. A. as each of the guests sat down to the table, he was greeted with a letter from his mother. Henry Cardwell spoke of mother love, while Hiram L. Middlebrooks dedicated a song to mother.

'MOTHER' ASKS WAR AID—Mrs. Charles H. Mayo (left), chosen as the "American Mother of 1940," is shown in New York yesterday as she appealed to the mothers of America to give financial help to "the wounded, robbed and impoverished kinsmen and friends overseas." With Mrs. Mayo is Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, the President's mother.

Missing Iceberg House Debate Mystery Probed On Pension Bill By Coast Guard To Open Today

Cutter Sails in Search of World's Largest Floating Bodies.

BOSTON, May 12.—The coast guard cutter Chelan sailed from Boston today to investigate the mystery of the missing icebergs.

Not one of the world's largest floating bodies has been sighted this season whereas 850 bergs were charted last year. Commander Edward H. Smith, starting his 10th season as head of the international ice patrol, hopes to solve nature's latest mystery by a "two or three-week survey cruise" of the grand banks and the southern Labrador coast.

A similar situation existed in 1924, Smith said, but the solution never was found. This year's cruise will check a theory that icebergs are trapped along the coasts by a scarcity of field ice. Lack of field ice leaves bare shores where Smith believes huge bergs may be imprisoned.

If the usual ice crop does not invade the North Atlantic the patrol will escape its most difficult year in its 26-year history.

Because of the European war it is feared that some of the 14 nations which contribute to the $250,000 annual cost of the patrol will withdraw their support.

Other difficulties will be the expected silence of ships trying to conceal their movements. Thus no helpful information concerning bergs and weather will be transmitted to the ice patrol.

Smith also anticipates trouble because war-seared ships are swerving from customary routes to foggy and usually ice-laden waters off Newfoundland for concealment. This, he said, may bring wrecks.

Forest Fires Destroy 2,200 Acres in N. J.

TRENTON, N. J., May 12.—(UP)—Two of New Jersey's worst forest fires of the year had destroyed more than 2,200 acres of woodland and still were burning tonight, State Fire Warden L. S. Fack announced.

A blaze three miles north of Absecon in Atlantic county had burned 1,500 acres of pine, Fack said, while a fire seven miles east of Millville, Cumberland county, had covered 750 acres of woodland. Other portions of the state reported 14 minor forest fires today.

Mothers Urged To Aid Needy Here, Abroad

Mrs. Mayo Appeals for Financial Help to War Sufferers.

NEW YORK, May 12.—(P)—An appeal to the mothers of America to invoke the Golden Rule in recognizing the needs of this country's underprivileged as well as those of European war sufferers was voiced today by Mrs. Charles H. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., who recently was chosen as "the typical American mother of 1940."

Mrs. Mayo spoke during a nationwide radio broadcast commemorating Mother's Day, sponsored by the Golden Rule Foundation.

This year's observance of Mother's Day has been made tragically different by the war, she said, in calling upon all who can to give financial help whenever possible.

Mrs. Mayo was introduced by Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, mother of the President, who expressed the hope that the Golden Rule program "may in some measure contribute to the establishment of abiding world peace."

FBI Chief Hits 'Falsehoods' of Reds in Nation

Send Them Back to Lands of Their Origin, He Urges.

BOSTON, May 12.—(P)—J. Edgar Hoover charged tonight that Communists had inspired "falsehoods" that the Federal Bureau of Investigation "has developed into an OGPU or Gestapo."

Addressing 2,000 delegates at a B'nai B'rith district convention, the FBI chief said in a prepared address that "the foul propaganda which has emanated from these banner carriers of foreignisms has been at work in a vicious campaign of chicanery, falsehood, and the spreading of misinformation."

"The FBI does not violate the lawful rights of any individual," he said, "I pledge you it never will."

Hoover said that "We cannot afford here to be tolerant of forces bent upon wrecking the world's last great citadel of democracy" and declared that those persons who came to this country and failed "to subscribe to the tenets which built this nation" should be returned to the lands of their origin.

"We became a great nation because of our open-hearted welcome to the outraged and oppressed who fulfilled their promise to live faithfully with us, by us and for us," he said.

He said that in extending benefits to widows and orphans of deceased veterans, congressmen "are transferring them from the relief rolls to the honor roll of the nation."

Georgia Dentists To Hear Anthony

MACON, Ga., May 12.—(P)—Dr. L. Pierce Anthony, nationally known leader in dental circles, will arrive here tomorrow morning to attend the annual meeting of the Georgia Dental Association.

Dr. Anthony, a native Georgian, is editor of the Journal of the American Dental Association, and is coming to Macon from Chicago. He is scheduled to deliver one of the principal addresses of the seventy-second annual convention Tuesday, when he talks on the future of organized dentistry. Hundreds of Georgia dentists are expected here tomorrow afternoon for pre-convention activities.

At 12:30 o'clock tomorrow the Sixth District Dental Society will have a luncheon. Also meeting in the afternoon will be the Georgia Dental Assistants' Association, the Georgia State Dental Hygienists' Association, and the Ladies Auxiliary of the Georgia Dental Association.

Opening of the year rides at Piedmont park brought a large crowd of youngsters yesterday and from early morning until afternoon the small animals were kept busy.

The ponies are trotting at Piedmont park, George L. Simons, general manager of parks, announced yesterday. He said the pony track at Grant park would open one day this week.

Three Kentuckians Die In Battle at Roadhouse

PINEVILLE, Ky., May 12.—(P)—Three men were shot to death early today in a roadside gunfight between members of two southeastern Kentucky mountain families. Deputy Sheriff Leon Nuckols said had been involved in previous shootings which cost six lives.

The deputy identified the dead as Caleb Blanton, 25; his brother, Walter, 40, and Clint Thompson, 25. He said Thompson apparently was struck by a stray bullet as he stood outside the roadhouse.

Job Insurance Claimants Given Appeals Warning

Claimants of unemployment compensation have been warned by the appeals tribunal of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation that their appeals will be considered abandoned if they fail, without good cause, after second notice, to appear and prosecute their claims at scheduled hearings.

In two separate decisions, the appeals tribunal upheld decisions of claims deputies in cases where the claimants failed to appear on two successive occasions at the time and place set for hearings.

Bass Junior Girl Heads Tri-Hi-Y

Miss Frances Bennett, of Bass Junior High school, yesterday was installed as president of the 1941 annual conference of state Junior Tri-Hi-Y groups.

Other officers are Miss Virginia Barrington, of Murphy Junior High school, vice president; Miss Norma Miles, of Columbus (Ga.) Junior High, secretary; and Miss Ranova Smith, of Hoke Smith, assistant secretary.

Council of AFL To Meet, Draft Political Plank

Will Debate Anti-Trust Action Against Building Heads.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(UP)—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor convenes here tomorrow, to write a labor plank for the platforms of the two major parties and to debate the government's prosecution of potential building trades leaders for alleged violation of anti-trust laws.

There was every indication tonight that the council would reaffirm the traditional nonpartisan political policy of the federation.

In contrast with the charge of John L. Lewis, CIO leader, that the New Deal has broken faith with the workers, AFL President William Green rarely has been critical of administration policies.

The New Deal has both friend and foe on the AFL council.

Vice President Daniel J. Tobin, head of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, is chairman of the labor committee of the Democratic national committee and friend and adviser to Mr. Roosevelt.

He favors a third term, as does Joseph P. Kamp, president of the musicians' union.

Protagonist of the New Dealers is First Vice President William L. Hutchison, head of the carpenters' union, who was chairman of the labor committee of the Republican national committee in 1936.

The anti-trust prosecutions probably will overshadow political considerations during the first sessions. The organization contends that congress never intended that the anti-trust laws should be applied to labor unions.

Atlantan's Sister Is Wed in Denver

DENVER, May 12.—(P)—Mrs. Adelaide Ogden Ray, a member of the Ogden family which developed the Armour Packing Company, was married today to Charles W. Brandenburg, of Hot Springs, Ark.

The quiet ceremony was held at the home of Mrs. Brandenburg's son, George O. Ray, with the Rev. S. Dapp of the Presbyterian church officiating. The bride was attended by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ray.

Mrs. Brandenburg is a sister of John M. Ogden, banker at Atlanta and Miami; William Hatfield Ogden, retired financier, of Asheville, N. C., and Palm Beach, Fla., and Armour Ogden, retired capitalist, of Los Angeles.

Youth, 18, Is Held On Liquor Charge

A 75-mile-an-hour chase of an alleged liquor car by East Point Policeman Jimmy Stubbs yesterday led to the arrest of an 18-year-old youth listed as James W. Dickey, of a Highland avenue address.

Dickey was charged with speeding, running past a red light, running past a stop sign, and possession of 75 gallons of non-tax-paid whisky, Stubbs said.

Talk on School Bond Proposal Is Set Tonight

Wells To Address South Fulton Citizens at Hapeville.

Southside Fulton county residents will mass in Hapeville tonight to hear the $750,000 school bond issue proposal discussed by Jere Wells, county school superintendent.

The gathering at the North Avenue school auditorium will be the first in a series of special mass meetings scheduled for every section of the county in the interest of passing the bonds.

The bond proposal will be submitted to county voters living outside the city of Atlanta, on June 8, the same day as the county primary election.

Proceeds derived from the bonds, if passed, will be used to inaugurate an extensive building program to meet enrollment needs, which have been growing by leaps and bounds during the past several years.

Tonight's meeting at 8 o'clock will be presided over by Mayor Eugene King, of Hapeville.

First American Nun Beatified At St. Peter's

Founder of Sacred Heart Sorority in U. S. May Become Saint.

VATICAN CITY, May 12.—(P) Mother Philippine Rose Duchesne, who may become the first American saint, was beatified today in St. Peter's.

Mother Duchesne introduced the Society of the Sacred Heart to the new world in 1818 and is buried in St. Charles, Mo.

The beatification ceremony, usually the first step toward sainthood, was the first of a series of five to take place on successive Sundays. A delegation from the United States attended.

Pope Pius XII visited the Basilica with traditional pomp in the afternoon to venerate the nun following the morning ceremony.

Two paintings depicting miracles attributed to Mother Duchesne hung from balconies within the Basilica while another picture of her was over the altar. Exposed on the altar was a bone from one of her feet.

Myron C. Taylor, personal representative of President Roosevelt at the Vatican, was among the members of the diplomatic court who attended.

Mother Duchesne, a French nun, introduced the Society of the Sacred Heart to the New World in 1818, when, with four sisters, she landed at New Orleans.

The sisters established their first school at St. Charles, Mo., then a shanty village. She died at St. Charles in 1852.

Helen Jepson Flies to Atlanta For Permanent

Singer Liked Way Her Hair Was 'Done' During Opera.

Helen Jepson, flaxen-haired Metropolitan opera star, flew to Atlanta yesterday from Richmond, Va., ostensibly for the sole purpose of getting a permanent wave.

It is time, she explained, for her annual permanent, and that's an important event to her as to any other member of the fair sex. She chose Atlanta to get the job done, because, she explained, she was so impressed with the ability of a woman who "did" her hair during her recent visit with the Metropolitan.

She left Atlanta this morning and will soon be back in New York for radio work and a vacation at her summer home. She hopes to return to Atlanta next year for opera.

John G. Evins Georgia Cattle Announces for Jump in Price Council Post By $5,515,000

Theater Owner Pledges To Work in Harmony With Hartsfield.

John G. Evins, Atlanta theater owner and manager, yesterday announced his candidacy for the city councilmanic post now held by J. Frank Beck, of the fifth ward.

Evins, who resides at 44 Eleventh street, is owner and manager of the Tenth Street and Plaza theaters. He is a native Atlantan and has resided here most of his life.

In announcing his candidacy, Evins said he is in sympathy with the policies which Mayor Hartsfield has inaugurated and, if elected, pledges to work in close harmony with the mayor.

Eidson, Bryan Flogging Trials Top Calendar

First Case Scheduled To Open Tomorrow; Robbery Suspects Called.

Trials of Dan Eidson and Raymond Bryan, under indictment in connection with an expose of flogging activities in Fulton county, are slated for tomorrow and Wednesday in Fulton county superior court.

The flogging cases highlight the week's calendar. Bryan is to face a jury Wednesday while Eidson's trial is set for Tuesday.

Other cases on the docket are Carl Smith and John Duncan, charged with the robbery of Luther Walton of $7.90. They are set for Tuesday.

Lee Powell, Roy Evans, William Boyd and Thomas Berryman are to face Judge Walter C. Hendrix tomorrow on charges that they robbed liquor stores.

Judge Hendrix also is to handle the flogging trials according to the docket, which was completed yesterday.

Beef Specialist Says State Herds Worth $19,421,000.

ATHENS, Ga., May 12.—Quality signifies the progress in Georgia's beef cattle industry, and latest figures indicate an increased total value of approximately $5,515,000 more, despite a decrease of 158,000 in cattle population, R. E. Davis, beef cattle and sheep specialist for the Georgia Agricultural Extension Service, reported today.

In 1932 the livestock and crops reporting service showed Georgia's livestock population to be 902,000 head, with an estimated value of $16.50 per animal, making a total value of $14,882,000.

In 1935, however, it had increased to 1,100,000 and the 1938 figure, the latest report, showed 942,000 cattle with a value of $19,421,000.

Definite improvement in the grade and quality of Georgia's beef industry began with the inauguration of the first fat cattle show held in Savannah in 1932.

Davis explained, Seventy head of cattle were exhibited and sold at this event.

"It was estimated that not more than 5 per cent of the cattle entered in the Savannah show graded United States medium or better," the livestock specialist pointed out. "However, in 1939 there were 14 fat cattle shows held throughout the state, with more than 2,000 animals exhibited and sold. These cattle graded 85 per cent United States medium or better, in contrast with only 3 per cent in 1932."

JERSEY CATTLE CLUB HOLDS SALE TODAY.

Dying Mother's 2 More Inmates Wish Fulfilled Break Legs at By Atlanta Son 'Little Alcatraz'

Her Ashes Are Strewn to the Wind Over Stone Mountain.

Mother's Day, 1940, will linger long in the memory of one Atlantan—Reno Mewbron.

For he chose the day to carry out the dying wish of his mother, Mrs. Frances Walter, who died November 28, 1939.

The wish—that her body be cremated and strewn to the winds—was carried out yesterday in a dramatic airplane flight over historic Stone Mountain. For his reverent mission, Mewbron chartered a plane from the municipal airport and headed for Stone Mountain.

As the plane roared high above the great rock, Mewbron silently opened the container, releasing her ashes—just as she had wished it.

Mewbron explained that his mother did not designate the time or place of the ceremony, and that it was his idea to choose Mother's Day because of its unusual meaning, and Stone Mountain because of its memorial features.

Only the pilot of the plane, Johnny Lynes, accompanied Mewbron on his mission.

Seminary Events Are of Interest

The last weeks of school at Washington Seminary find the calendar filled with a series of social affairs. Tomorrow members of the home economics class entertain at a tea for the mothers.
 On Wednesday evening an interesting program will be presented at the school auditorium at 8 o'clock under the direction of Miss Ruth Draper. For several years Miss Draper's class has presented a play as a climax of the year's work, but this year the presentation will be in the form of a monologue performance, with each girl presenting an original act she has written.

Taking part and their subjects will be Misses Laura Palmer, "Grand Central Station"; Sue Pierson, "If the Shoe Fits"; Annette Baker, "Problems of Adolescence"; Courtney MacFayden, "Episodes in a Beauty Parlor"; Ida B. Sanders, "A Sub-Deb Studies"; Elizabeth Routh, "Department Store"; Anne See, "No Trump"; Betsey White, "Hotel Switchboard"; Harriet Zahner, "A Lesson in American History"; Beverly Zerbst, "Transportation, the Hard Way"; Mimi Sault, "Unsolicited Advice"; Mary Romberger, "Telephone"; Laura Palmer, "Intermission"; Anne Phillips, "My Type"; Clare Johnson, "Summer Vacation"; Sara Fluker, "At the Dentist"; Daisy Miller, "Golf Lessons"; and Charlotte Woolford, "Shipboard."

On Thursday evening the domestic science class entertains at their annual dinner in honor of their fathers.
 May Day takes place on Tuesday, May 21, and on May 22 for the second year a repeat performance will be given for the crippled children and orphans of the city. Miss Ione Mercer will reign as Queen of the May and Miss Catherine Tift will be maid of honor.

Fish Fry Planned.

North Fulton County Civic Club will sponsor a fish fry on May 25 at Weinstock's garden and ticket reservations may be made with Mrs. L. D. Hicks, ticket chairman, at Cherokee 1831 or from Mrs. J. O. Wilson, co-chairman, Cherokee 2663.

Crackers Win, 6-0; Lose, 4-0; Trade Mauldin for Charley Glock

BY JACK TROY

Jockey Vindicated Turf writers, unwilling to take the rap for mistaken judgment, shifted the blame for Bimelech's failure to win the Derby to Jockey Freddie Smith.

Why Smith was to blame is not quite clear. He stayed the pace until the proper time to call on Bimelech for his bid, and when he did Bimelech didn't come through.

The mile and a quarter grind just seemed too much for the son of Black Toney.

It had been taken for granted, since Bimelech had never run a mile and a quarter before, that he could do it with the greatest of ease. The showdown came and he couldn't.

So Smith was blamed. But he wasn't blamed by Owner Bradley or Trainer Hurley.

Smith rode the Lexington lightning rod again Saturday, in the Preakness, but they're not saying he's a pretty good jockey, rode a nice race.

Bimelech was bumped at the start, stood off repeated challenges and won the mile and three-sixteenths race going away.

It took good work on the part of the jockey to bring Bimelech home on top. Smith did it and thus is vindicated in the eyes of the racing world.

If he hadn't been a good jockey all the while there would have been another rider on Bimelech Saturday.

Never Fails This corner's Derby picks either aren't ready or can't go the distance, but they are always red hot in the Preakness.

Remember Johnstown's great Derby victory a year ago? Challeon was run into the ground. He was a thoroughly beaten horse.

But what happened a week later? Challeon outran Johnstown and all the rest.

The same thing happened this year. Bimelech couldn't make it over a mile and a quarter, but was the show of the field at a shorter distance.

This corner maintained Bimelech would win the Preakness, insisting that Bradley colt will outrun any of the current challengers at any distance less than a mile and a quarter.

When a mile and three-sixteenths had been covered in the Derby, Bimelech was in front and then folded as Gallahadion came sprinting along the rail.

Old Order Changeth There has been, in the past, an emphasis on hairy-legged, temperamental males in Atlanta tennis tournaments.

Atlanta has seen the Tildens and the Vines and the Budeges and the Grants and the Riggs—first one and then another—in a long parade of masculine maneuvering.

Always the gals have been secondary in the tournaments. Often women's divisions have been added to tournaments largely as an afterthought.

Why this has been the rule I do not know. But it is pleasant to speculate on the change of the old order and look forward to the gals taking over.

The big name—and trim figure—of the Atlanta Invitation tournament, starting tomorrow at the Northside Courts, is Alice Marble.

She completely overshadows Betsy Grant, or any other male, in the men's division.

If one is compelled, in the course of reporting, to mention something other than her charm, the fact is that, as the No. 1 women's player of the world—or what's left of it—Alice Marble was good enough in six months of play last year to lose only five sets.

With this trivial data out of the way, let it be known, forthwith, that Miss Marble and her tennis game are a stand-off. They're both easy on the eyes.

There has been quite a transition between Miss Marble as a gangling gal and as a mature woman. It was necessary for her brother to prevail upon her to quit shagging flies for the San Francisco Seals and to take up tennis, which seemed to be a more ladylike game.

But the transition has not removed the tomboy instinct. She still plays tennis like a boy.

And if the presence of this charming performer doesn't make the Invitation tournament the greatest of all time—well, there just isn't any common sense left in a chaotic world.

Here's the Winner It should be related, first off, that the Conasauga river is a trout stream and, secondly, that catfish aren't predatory.

Now go on with the story from Glenn Bryant, wild life ranger at Dalton, Ga.:

"This is a true story related by W. A. Whittle, who has a picture of the fish.

"A 60-pound catfish was taken from the Conasauga river near Dalton. After much struggling the fish was removed to a field nearby. In the field the big fish erupted a 3½-pound, a 2½-pound and a 1-pound catfish. Then when Mr. Whittle got the monster home it erupted many more smaller fish.

"The large cat (60 pounds) measured 12 inches between the eyes and was 34 feet long."

A quick check among veteran fishermen revealed that the Conasauga cat is record size for the state. In fact, it may be record size for a fresh water cat taken in any state.

Certainly a 60-pound cat, measuring 12 inches from eye to eye, is no minnow. It comes closer to bordering on the whale.

It is now up to Ranger Bryant to produce the picture, in case friends and others (some fishermen are skeptics) fail to take the story at its face value.

Demaret, Sarazen Play Par Golf as Band Plays, Fans Roam

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., May 12.—(UP)—Under conditions reminiscent of opening day at Ebbets field, Jimmy Demaret and Gene Sarazen today blasted the myth that silence is golden on a golf course.

With a band playing at their heels, and autograph hunters thicker than the grass underfoot, this pair almost fought a draw with Old Man Par over the course of the Shorehaven Golf Club.

Officially, it was a foursome, with Gene Tunney and Babe Ruth playing along on the theory that if anyone was accustomed to crowds, these boys were. The final score was a 2-and-1 victory for the team of Ruth and Demaret.

But to the crowd of 5,000—including about 1,000 of the roughest, toughest, meanest urchins ever seen outside a "Dead End Kids" picture cast—the man of the hour was Demaret, the laughing boy from Texas, who currently is the hottest golfer in the land. Demaret lived up to the role of autographing 1,232 programs, 342 scraps of paper and a parking ticket. In between, Jimmy shot a neat par 72, being three under heading for the 13th green. Sarazen had a 73, one over, and Ruth and Tunney had creditable 82's.

Memphis Gets But Three Hits Off Lochbaum

T. Hafey and McQuillen Blast Homers in First Game.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 12.—Crackers got off better than an even break with the Cubs this afternoon, despite the fact that Emil Lochbaum and Jennings Poindexter pitched three-hit games.

Atlanta won the first 6-0 behind the superb throwing of the young right-hander, and by hitting Wimpy Willis nine times and in timely spots. Homers by Tom Hafey and Glenn McQuillen featured the attack, with Emil Mailho having a perfect batting record of three hits in three trips.

Atlanta might have won the second game if it hadn't been for Babe Barna. The big outfielder

The Crackers open a three-game series with Birmingham here tonight at 8:30. Charley Glock, second baseman obtained from Knoxville in exchange for Marshall Mauldin, will be in the Atlanta lineup.

started the Cubs to their first run with a scratch single, on which Alf Anderson made a two-base error, then put the affair away with a three-run homer in the eighth after a spell of wildness had hit Poindexter.

STOUT ON MOUND. Allyn Stout did the shutout job for the Tribe, allowing only five hits and doing a tremendously fine feat of turning back the Crackers in the clutches.

The first game was put away on ice as early as the first inning when Tom Hafey, a right-handed hitter, bumped a home run over the right-field fence. Lochbaum proceeded to keep it there, encouraged every now and then by scoring bursts on the part of the Crackers, climaxed by another home run to the same sector by another right-handed hitter, Glenn McQuillen, in the eighth. Each hit with Emil Mailho on base.

Mr. Mailho was on base practically all during the game, getting three hits and a walk in four tries. One of his blows was a pop-fly double that fell 15 feet from the plate, lost in the sun by three Cubs.

He had walked in the first when Tom Hafey hit. In the sixth, he singled, went to third on Tom Hafey's single, and scored when Babe Barna let the ball go through him. McQuillen's hit scored Hafey.

Then in the eighth Mailho looped one into right and after Hafey went out, McQuillen hit for distance. Lester Burge, appearing at bat for the first time in 26 days, lofted one of Stout's pitches against the 366-yard center field fence, for a triple with one down in the second, but couldn't score. After McQuillen was hit in the ribs, Anderson went down swinging and Richards popped to Johnnyeppitt.

TWO ERRORS. Poindexter, who had allowed one scratch hit, was victimized for a run on two errors in the fourth. With one down Burge failed to touch first on Anderson's throw of Bud Hafey's grounder. Naylor fled out but Barna grounded over second. Anderson got the ball, but threw wildly to first and Bud Hafey scored.

Barna put the clincher on the ball game with the first real hit off Poindexter, a home run on a line drive over the right field fence with Bush and Bud Hafey, who had drawn walks, on base. The blow came in the last of the sixth.

Bimelech Eyes North Fulton Relays To Attract Luttrell Claims His Taped Fist Very Necessary

Many Records Will Be in Jeopardy as Cinder Stars Gather Here Next Friday for Annual Invitation Meet.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

Practically all of the best prep track talent in North Georgia will be on display for the edification of Atlanta fandom next Friday afternoon and night when the annual North Fulton Invitation relays will hold sway over the North Fulton oval in Buckhead.

Georgia Military Academy, Lanier and Boys' High, which teams finished in that order in the G. I. A. A. meet held at Grant Field last Friday, all have already entered.

The host, North Fulton Bulldogs, who copped the N. G. I. C. crown for the third time in four years in last Tuesday's meet, will be in the running, of course, as will Athens High, runner-up to the Bulldogs in the N. G. I. C. session.

The Tech High Smithies, who were ruled ineligible for the G. I. A. A. meet on a technicality, have a strong team, and will have a chance to show what they might have done had they been allowed to participate in the conference session. In addition, Canton and Russell have entered squads.

All existing meet records will be in jeopardy with such stars as Joe Morrow, of Lanier; Carl Anderson, of G. M. A.; Jimmy Justus, Boys' High; Jack Pounds, Tech High; Clyde Edwards, G. M. A., and Dick Gray, Luther Rabun, Martin Nichols, Eddie Fraser and Keith Chapman, of North Fulton, out to scatter cinders faster than ever before.

Morrow, all 6 feet 6 inches of him, is practically a certainty to shatter the discus heave by many feet. He tossed the platter 137

Atlanta Lands Second Sacker From Smokies

New Cracker Plays Today; Mauldin Returns to His Favorite Park.

By JACK TROY.

In a straight player deal, with no cash involved, the Crackers last night traded Marshall Mauldin for Charley Glock, utility infielder of Knoxville.

And so Mauldin goes back with the Smokies, the club with which he led the Southern league in batting in 1936, and the Crackers have obtained a regular second baseman.

Mauldin hit .376 with Knoxville the year he led the league. Although a fine defensive outfielder, he never approached that mark as a Cracker.

He started out hitting well this year but here of late his batting has slumped again.

The need for a second baseman led to the trade, however. Glock is a natural second baseman. He played the position most of last season with Knoxville. A left-handed batter, he finished the year with an average of .285. He hit 22 doubles and two home runs.

The year before Glock played with Columbia, in the Sally league, and batted .320.

It is the sincere hope of President Earl Mann that Glock will prove to be the second baseman the Crackers need and that the trade will prove helpful to Mauldin, Atlanta boy.

In his years with the Crackers Marshall Mauldin has been a very handy individual, filling in at infield spots when needed. He played second base on the road trip which has just ended.

He was signed as a free agent at a fancy figure but his hitting here never measured up to his year at Knoxville. A change of scenery may be just what he needs.

Glock has been playing third base for the Smokies, but his natural position is second base, and if he can fill it satisfactorily a pressing Cracker problem will be solved.

Glock will be in the Crackers' lineup tonight against Birmingham.

TALLULAH FALLS SCHOOL FASHION SHOW

TOMORROW ... AT 3:00 P. M.
ON THE ROOF ... AT RICH'S
(in case of rain show postponed to Wednesday)

"Around the Clock with Rich's Fashions" is the theme of the Benefit Fashion spectacle being staged tomorrow on Rich's Roof!

It is Rich's gesture in salute to a great cause ... the magnificent work achieved at the Tallulah Falls School. It is in tribute to the ideals of the school itself, and to the Club Women of Georgia who have made these ideals an impressive reality. It is a compliment, direct and heartfelt, to the Young Matrons Circle of Atlanta which is sponsoring the show, and whose particular interest centers in Tallulah Falls School.

The charming models pictured above are only a few of the members of Atlanta's young married set who are taking active part in the Fashion Show. They are, reading from left to right, Mrs. Allen Morris, Mrs. William Schroeder, Jr., Mrs. Julian Carr, III, Mrs. Stuart Witham, Jr., Mrs. J. L. Campbell, Jr., Mrs. J. H. Boland.

Businessman Needs More Outdoor Exercise

By Ida Jean Kain.

The average businessman is not particularly concerned about living to a hale and hearty old age. What he wants is to stay 15 rounds in the ring of finance and to keep on savoring the ups, downs and thrills!

In his office as physical trainer to many of the Hollywood financial wizards—who are supposed to be peerless in juggling dollars and cents to make fortunes—Terry Hunt has had ample opportunity to observe their ways and means of realizing ambition. His deductions are neatly summarized in a book called "Exercise to Keep Fit." Without wasting words he might have added, "For Fighting!"

If you talk to yourself, find noise unbearable, suffer from insomnia, or feel dependent for no reason whatever, Mr. Hunt urges that you lose no time in consulting a competent psychiatrist! Then you will feel more confidence in resuming the health precautions you have been neglecting for years!

But, to begin at the beginning, Mr. Hunt finds that most businessmen concentrate on their jobs to the exclusion of everything else... that is the reason they become restless, nervous, taut, and hard to live with. The general tendency is to work harder, play less, and to concentrate more and more upon one narrow aim until one becomes "haywire!"

And while relaxation may strike the individual as "fiddling while Rome burns," that is exactly what is needed in most cases! The relaxation should, of course, include the right kind of exercise, so that the body is toned and there is a perceptible increase in the ability to deal with difficulties.

The best recreation is the competitive game, which not only tones the muscles but also takes the mind off business for a while. This includes golf, tennis, badminton, or whatever you like to compete at. You can actually prolong your usefulness in business by playing golf two or three times a week!

But if for some reason or other you are unable to engage in competitive games, you must resort to calisthenics—even as the movie wizards—to keep yourself fit! Here are two exercises favored by this physical trainer because they get results.

Position: Lie on the back on the floor with the legs straight down and arms down at sides.

Movement: Flex the knees and raise the entire body of the floor, supporting the weight on heels and head. Relax, repeat for 10 times.

Position: Lie on the floor face downward, legs straight down and arms down at sides.

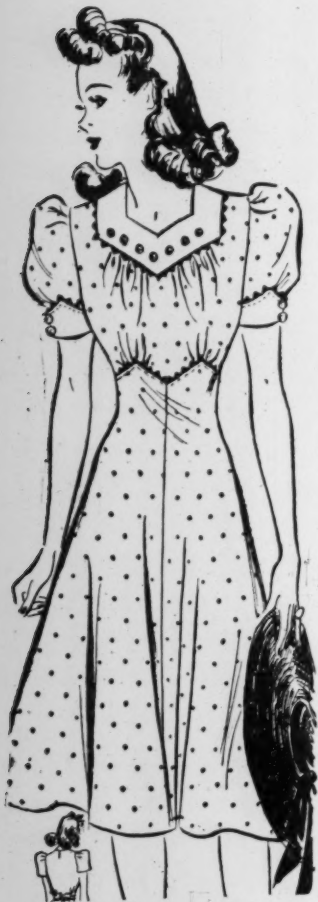

Movement: Raise head and heels at the same time. Hold, relax for a second, repeat.

There are any number of these trunk-strengthening exercises.

Send to Ida Jean Kain, in care of The Atlanta Constitution, for the leaflet, "Waistlines and Belts," which will be mailed to you on receipt of a stamped return envelope.

A Casual Cotton

By Lillian Mae.

Casual cotton frocks are the mainstay of any well-dressed summer clothes-closet. This is especially true of the Lillian Mae Pattern 4324 so smart for all-day wear and so simple to stitch up with the Sewing Instructor's guidance.

The dress is placed high for slim lines; the four-section skirt flares briskly. Just see how engagingly the "copycats" the shape of the neckline... and notice the gathered bodice softness. The puffed sleeves may have smart pointed bands. Outline all the striking style details with ric-rac, or make the yoke and sleevebands in bright contrast.

Pattern 4324 is available in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 3 1/2 yards 35-inch fabric and 2 yards ric-rac.

Send 15 cents in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Send your order to Lillian Mae Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Color of Kit Indicates Make-Up Blend for Costume

By Lillian Mae.

It has such a flippant name, but it is one of the most sensible little pouches I've known yet.

The cosmetician who designs and makes this new package is one who absolutely insists that colors match or blend. He's like that about the wardrobe he designs, and no less so with references to cosmetics.

You undoubtedly have one color which is outstanding in your wardrobe. Of course mine's blue. Yours may be gray—or green. Well, all that's necessary is to tell the sales person what that color is, and she'll bring forth a cute little flat shantung envelope with a gold clasp. And the bag will be blue, gray, green, or whatever color predominates amongst your clothes. You don't have to go about trying out shades of cosmetics and matching lipstick with rouge, etc.

In that little package you'll find, each in its own little pocket to avoid rattling around, an ivory box of rouge, a lipstick in gold burrished case, a generous-sized ivory box of face powder—all assembled to harmonize with your costume color, as indicated by the color of the kit itself. In addition, there's a good-sized puff as soft as lamb's wool—not in the powder box, but in its own pocket. And then the cutest thing of all!

In a cellophane envelope there's one of those blotter-like cards—I've always adored them and wondered how they were made—that's scented with the same odor as that contained in the cosmetics. And it's shaped like the bottle in which you would find that particular perfume. Folded inside your hanky, it will add the last touch!

Also in this little bag, there's a suggestion for the proper shade of mascara and eye shadow to complement your make-up. At first I wondered why they weren't included, but then realized that all people don't use those two items, and if they had been, the price would have had to be more than the $1.50 charged for the ensemble. At this price, you can, of course, afford to have the proper shade of make-up for your different costumes. But let me tell you about one of the most attractive. Fashion gives us so many multi-colored stripes this year for casual and play clothes. And this type of outfit hasn't been forgotten. There's a kit in blue and white stripe candy stripe, and one in red and white. Now, don't expect me to say that the contents are striped, too. No, of course, the cosmetics are blended for either the blue or red, but think how proud you would be to pull out of your pocket or bag a cosmetic pouch, containing all necessary items, that pouch striped to match your frock.

To me, this is one of the most ingenious packages yet. The bag colors are so soft and attractive. The lovely rose color you'll get if you ask for make-up to harmonize with pink or rose; a soft beige will be brought out if you are wearing yellow, brown or natural tones; a gorgeous color of green for wear with either light or dark green; a very lovely red for all the season's reds and a gray that isn't in the least dead, for wear with all the season's grays. The blue bag is such a blue, its contents so blended, that it harmonizes beautifully with either light or dark blue.

Be very up-to-date with your make-up and your accessories by having two or three of these kits—you can at the low price—and keep the red one in your handbag which goes out with you when you're wearing red, and so on.

This is a very timely suggestion for bridal showers, graduation gifts, etc.

You'll like the powder and other make-up so well that it wouldn't surprise me to hear that you've switched from your old brand to this, after you've tried it.

Phone me for the name of this lovely little packet and see for yourself how it will dramatize your costumes. Write me if you do not live in Atlanta, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

THE WOMAN'S QUIZ

Q. What are some of the things average boys and girls of five should be able to do?

A. They should be able to dress themselves if their clothing is laid out for them, excepting shoe laces, ribbons, or ties. They can button their clothes if the buttons and buttonholes are not inaccessible. They can wash their faces without help, go to the toilet alone; and unfasten their clothes. They should have no daytime "accidents." They can go about the neighborhood unattended; and obey instructions as to areas where they can play. They can play, in small groups of children of the same age, such games as hide-and-seek, hopscotch, marbles, tag, follow-the-leader and skip rope; they can draw with pencil and crayon simple things like houses and animals in recognizable forms.

Q. How may bruised spots on furniture be raised?

A. By wetting slightly and covering with a damp blotter or piece of felt. Then place the round end of a thimble on the blotter, directly over the dent, and press it into the cavity with a hot flat-iron. Hold until the wood is well heated and steam causes the wood cells of the dent to swell to their original positions. Afterwards polish well with powder and oil.

Q. Does an invitation to a wedding carry an obligation to send a gift?

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address, enclose a three-cent postage stamp and mail to The Woman's Editor of The Constitution, Washington, D. C., for a reply. Don't telephone; write as directed.

A. No. Affection, friendship, relationship, or business affiliations with the families of the bride or groom are the real reasons for sending gifts. Presents are sent to the bride, but if the sender is the special friend of the groom, the gift may be for his personal use.

I would say $900 up!

It is more likely that the man is sensitive to some element in the fish liver oil from which the natural vitamin A is obtained by distillation and concentration. The better course for him would be to rest off from the vitamin A for a week, and then resume it, taking two capsules daily for several more weeks or until his skin condition is restored to normal.

Nutrition authorities estimate that a young child requires 10,000 units of vitamin A daily just to maintain normal health, so it is scarcely reasonable that 10 times as much would have any harmful effect on an adult, if you do not forget that vitamin A is an essential nutritive substance, not a drug or medicine to be measured in "doses."

"Thus far the evidence seems to indicate," said an editorial in the Jour. A. M. A., "not only for vitamin D but for all the vitamins more harm in the direction of an insufficiency than in relationship to an oversupply."

A lot of people get too little vitamins to maintain health. Few if any get too much vitamin in any circumstance.

Hollywood Gives Levant Leading Role

He Says Film Work Not His Racket--- Not Spontaneous, Makes Him Nervous

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, May 12.—Oscar Levant is lunching at Paramount. And it is very amusing to watch the way he is now treated, and compare it with what went on two years ago. Now it's "Hello, Mr. Levant," and "Nice to see you, Oscar," and "My, but you're looking well!" Two years ago, the Hollywood "biggies" were in blissful ignorance of Levant the composer, Levant the wit. And if they did think about him at all, it was a moody, rather rude young man who could play the piano fairly well, but would never amount to much.

Now that Mr. Levant is a number one favorite of the networks, now that he is the author of a best selling book, now that his worth as a composer and conductor has been recognized, Hollywood is glad to add its quota of homage and has given him a leading role with Bing Crosby in what was titled "Ghost Music," and is now "Rhythm on the River."

Oscar has already had some film experience in the "Information Please" movie shorts, but he tells me that is something quite different to his present work. "This isn't my racket—it's not spontaneous. It makes me nervous."

"You look calm enough," says this writer, who remembers the jittery Levant of pre-success days. "It's all external," says the lad, "inside I'm exploding."

"What sort of part do you play in the picture?"

"He's my manager," interrupts Basil Rathbone, who is lunching with Levant. Rathbone plays a stale song-writer who hires a couple to ghost-write his music and lyrics. Crosby does the music, Mary Martin, the words.

"Have you a good part?" I ask Levant. He looks blank, then says, "I don't know. I hope not," and gives out the well-known giggle.

In another corner of the Paramount restaurant I spot Patricia Morison lunching with Mary Martin—or rather Mary is lunching. Patricia is watching. Miss Martin tells me the why and wherefore of the suddenness of her elopement with Richard Halliday. "Dick was buying a new car. He wanted to try it out first. He asked me where we should go. I said, 'Anywhere, as long as it's a long way from Hollywood.' So he drove me to Las Vegas. And we got married!"

Miss Morison is not quite as ecstatically enthusiastic. "I'm a bit of a cynic," she says. "I'm a bit of a cynic," she says. "I'm a bit of a cynic," she says.

"What, no lunch?" this writer asks—a trifle unfeelingly.

"No," says Patricia and gives me her food schedule for this particular day. Breakfast—one small slice of toast, small glass of orange juice, coffee minus milk, and cream. Her next contact with nourishment will be at 5 p. m., when she will have a cup of green tea. For dinner she looks forward to a couple of eggs and stewed tomatoes. And so to bed. (I'm sometimes glad that Fate did not make me a movie actress.) Poor Patricia!

Spencer Tracy and Clark Gable sing a duet in "Boom Town" that should bring the house down. Literally... If you want to see the ranch owned by Barbara Stanwick see the picture "One Came Home" (now in production, and co-starring Robert Young and Maureen O'Sullivan). Movie stars' homes quite frequently appear in pictures. The present Clark Gable-prominent part in the Betty Davis-Eddie G. Robinson film, "Kid Galahad." It was supposed to be Gangster Eddie's country hide-away.

It is possible that the man did take more vitamin A than he actually needed after the first six weeks or so—perhaps 50,000 units (two capsules) or only 25,000 units (one capsule) daily would have been sufficient, along with what vitamin A he obtained in food, to restore his skin to normal. But neither the hot flashes nor the red blotches that remain for a while afterward are an indication of too much vitamin A.

It is more likely that the man is sensitive to some element in the fish liver oil from which the natural vitamin A is obtained by distillation and concentration. The better course for him would be to rest off from the vitamin A for a week, and then resume it, taking two capsules daily for several more weeks or until his skin condition is restored to normal.

Nutrition authorities estimate that a young child requires 10,000 units of vitamin A daily just to maintain normal health, so it is scarcely reasonable that 10 times as much would have any harmful effect on an adult, if you do not forget that vitamin A is an essential nutritive substance, not a drug or medicine to be measured in "doses."

"Thus far the evidence seems to indicate," said an editorial in the Jour. A. M. A., "not only for vitamin D but for all the vitamins more harm in the direction of an insufficiency than in relationship to an oversupply."

A lot of people get too little vitamins to maintain health. Few if any get too much vitamin in any circumstance.

Herbert Chatley has been awarded the Insignia of the Order of the Brilliant Jade, White Cravat, with Red and Blue Borders by the president of the national government of China.

Madeleine Carroll is being considered by Cecil B. De Mille for the all-important part of the Virgin Mary in his soon-to-be-produced "Queen of Queens." The only stumbling block to the actual signing of Madeleine for the role is her recent real-life divorce, which may cause objection from church authorities. The reaction to this paragraph probably will decide whether Madeleine gets the role.

Whoever is signed by De Mille—Madeleine or some other actress—must be prepared to lead a cloistered and careful existence during the making of the picture and until it is well launched with the public. When De Mille chose H. B. Warner to play Christ in "King of Kings," by the way, has been seen with a woman in public, and even to eat in public! Maybe Madeleine won't want the role under such stringent terms. "King of Kings," by the way, has been seen by more people than any other picture made in Hollywood. Since its release in 1927 60,000,000 all over the world have seen the movie. And it is still going strong.

Nobody Gets Too Much Vitamin

By Dr. William Brady.

A man who for several years had been troubled with rough, scaly, dry, itchy skin, "tried" the usual ointments, lotions and other remedies suggested by Tom, Dick and Harry, in the usual way, and obtained no relief.

Then patches of the trouble appeared on new areas, and the man's wife happened to see an article in this column which told of the value of adequate daily rations of natural vitamin A (not carotene) in the prevention and cure of nutmeg grater skin, chronic "gooseflesh," or "toad-skin." He began taking four capsules daily (100,000 units A). In two or three weeks, enough improvement in the skin condition was evident to encourage him to continue taking the same daily quantity of natural vitamin A.

After six or eight weeks the itching ceased, the scaly skin had disappeared except one or two little spots, and the skin began to look like a human skin. Ah, but the man now worked up some new complaints. Maybe he just has to think of mischief. Anyway he began to have hot flashes, so his wife averted, and odd reddened patches would appear on forehead or cheek, persist for a little while after a hot flash had passed off, then fade again.

So he consulted, not the cop at the traffic crossing, but the corner druggist, of course. The druggist, unable to resist the temptation to pretend he has vast medical knowledge, opined that the man is taking too much vitamin A and cannot possibly assimilate so much. So-o-o, he said more! It is an old concept of quackery and folklore that if you ingest too much of anything, the excess breaks out through your "pores" in the form of a skin rash.

It is possible that the man did take more vitamin A than he actually needed after the first six weeks or so—perhaps 50,000 units (two capsules) or only 25,000 units (one capsule) daily would have been sufficient, along with what vitamin A he obtained in food, to restore his skin to normal. But neither the hot flashes nor the red blotches that remain for a while afterward are an indication of too much vitamin A.

MY DAY: Thinking Is Helping Low - Cost Housing

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—After Wednesday's lunch in New York city, I hurried home to see a number of people. First and foremost, I saw a gentleman who has a vision of the way in which real low-cost housing might be developed for the benefit of groups which today are living in big cities in squalid conditions. He also has a desire to see private industry undertake a great housing program to eliminate slums in cities and rural areas and to replace them with medium-priced houses, either for rent or ultimate ownership.

More and more people are coming to believe that a big housing program is really needed in this country, that it should be on a low-cost level which should be achieved by economies in the building industry and not by giving the consumers shoddy materials and poor workmanship. I am always glad to find an interest in this kind, even though it may not be translated immediately into action. Constant talk and thought on this subject will eventually, I think, have the effect of a rolling snowball.

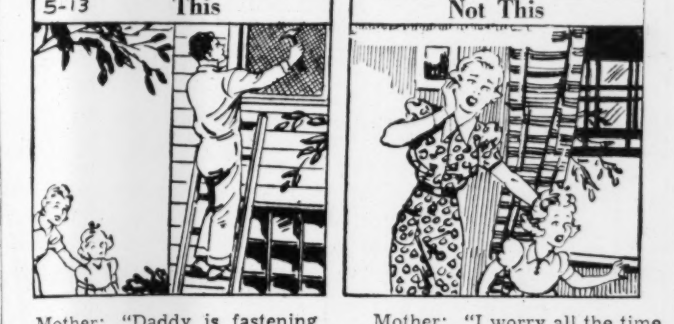

Our evening was spent with Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Flynn and some friends. I was happy to be with them and to see their boys, who were such delightful guests at the White House not long ago. They have a little girl who was considered too young to come to Washington, and so she announced last night that she was going to stay up as long as I was in the house. I hope her eyes closed long before I left, for we stayed until rather a late hour.

Many people came to see me yesterday morning to talk of their special interests. I often wish I had the power to help all the worthwhile things brought to my attention. However, it is encouraging to have the opportunity to see the fine people who are working so unselfishly in so many different fields to achieve results for the benefit of their fellow human beings.

We had an early lunch and went to the broadcasting station and then motored to Hyde Park. The early part of the day was not as pleasant as Wednesday, and I was grieved, for I thought I would not see the sun shining on our country surroundings. But, by the time we were ready to start, the sun came out and the drive along the park was beautiful, with the forsythia and trees and shrubs in bloom. After one night at my cottage, we started out again on our drive to Choate school in Wallingford, Conn. I thought all day of a trip we had taken a few years ago to St. Paul's school, when one of my nephews was head boy there. There is something very touching in the contact with these youngsters, so full of fire and promise and curiosity about life. One can not help dreading what life may do to them, and yet each generation starts out with the same high hopes and the same high spirit. Youth has courage and the spirit of adventure, and we should give it our confidence.

Handicap May Be Mental Stimulus

By Caroline Chatfield.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD: When I was a child I had a terrible case of polio that left me crippled. It's bad enough not to be able to get out and work like other girls, but on top of this my family treats me different from the way they treat my brothers and sisters. I have no dates and Dad tells me I needn't expect any, as no man wants to marry a crippled girl. Mother is never satisfied with the work I do around the house, though I try to help as much as I can. I don't fit in anywhere and honestly if the rest of my life is going to be as bad as the first part, I'd rather be dead. Won't you give me a word of encouragement.

DEPRESSED.

ANSWER:

Do you recall a painting by the English artist Watts, called HOPE? It shows a woman sitting alone at the top of a globe. She's blind. She holds a harp with broken strings. In the background there's a tiny star shining in the dark sky. There, my dear girl, is your first job: to remember a star of hope is pointing to a brighter future. Then begin to work toward it.

The President of the United States has crippled legs. But mind you, even those who don't like him personally or politically, hand it to him: he has the goods of heroic courage and the handicap of crippled legs has not really been a handicap after all.

Handicaps are handicaps only when a man sits down and grieves over them. They can be great mental and moral stimulants. Beginning at scratch, let's repeat what an eminent psychiatrist has said: "The most striking attribute of the normal mind is its ability to adjust itself to any inevitable circumstance." Maybe you can't walk normally, but you can work like a Trojan and forget about walking and adjust yourself to the thought of being crippled.

Work at what? Well, since the business men say that a stenographer who can take shorthand as fast as spoken, read as fast as written, transcribe it correctly with accurate spelling and punctuation, is as rare as a white sparrow, why cannot you take a home course and perfect yourself in these skills? The course will give you something to occupy your time in a most useful way. And when you have mastered it, no doubt you can get an office job, or take in work at home.

Well, I know what a bitter disappointment it is to a young girl to realize that she is going to miss the fun and frolic of dates and dances which her friends have. However, there are often satisfactions in life besides dates and who knows but love will come to her some day when she has got out into the stream of life and is paddling her own canoe?

It is much easier to hold the head in the hands and cry about a handicap, letting the waves of depression roll over one, than to get down to hard work. Yet hard work will cure the depression and if it is intelligent work, it will overcome the handicap, even in the midst of an unsympathetic and critical and cruel family.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Laura and Joe Boland Given Informal Party at Twin Barns

• • • The informal party given yesterday for Laura and Joe Boland took place at Twin Barns, the country home of Dr. and Mrs. Newdigate Owensby, the genial hosts. Invitations bore the colored picture of the attractive house, and the map directed guests to motor out Pace's Ferry road and pick up the Marietta highway, thence through Marietta, and then turn to the left on the Canton highway. Twin Barns is built on a picturesque knoll just three miles above Marietta, and a white gate guards the entrance to the property.

The diversions at the party included pitching horseshoes, rolling tennis, playing tennis and strolling around the grounds surrounding the house. Tea was served in the dining room made bright with flowers grown in Mrs. Owensby's garden, and the party was one of the most enjoyable affairs given for Laura and Joe, whose marriage was a brilliant event of last February.

Invited were Dr. and Mrs. Frank K. Boland, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hill, Dr. Kells Boland, Mr. and Mrs. William Nixon, Mr. and Mrs. Malcom Courts, Mr. and Mrs. William Ward Jr., Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Kilpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Boston Jr., Miss Henrietta Collier, Dr. W. B. Armstrong, Dr. and Mrs. S. T. Barnett Jr., Dr. and Mrs. Cyrus Strickler Jr. and Dr. and Mrs. William Minnich.

• • • WHEN Penn Hammond celebrated her twenty-first birthday last Saturday, 30 of her classmates were invited to the delectable buffet supper given by Mrs. George B. Denman, her grandmother.

The party was given at Mrs. Denman's home on Westminster drive, and the birthday cake was baked in the same pan that was used 73 years ago, to bake the wedding cake for Penn's maternal great-grandmother, the late Mrs. George Taylor, of Kentucky.

The little doll adorning the top of the cake wore a cap and gown and held a diploma, to suggest the fact that Penn will graduate from Agnes Scott College in December on the fourth of June.

When Penn receives her diploma, she will wear the same cap and gown worn by her father, the late P. W. Hammond, when he graduated from Williams College 31 years ago.

Another link in the chain of sentiment is the fact that Penn's mother, the former Elizabeth Denman, who was engaged to Penn's father when she graduated, donned this same cap and gown 22 years ago, to receive her diploma from Agnes Scott College.

Parties Continue For Miss Wilson.

Miss Lucile Wilson, whose marriage to Charles C. Whitaker Jr., of New York City, will be an interesting event of June 4, continues to be complimented at pre-nuptial social affairs.

On Wednesday Miss Wilson will be honor guest at the bridge-luncheon at which Mrs. Earl Crosswell will entertain at her home on Wiecua road.

On May 18 the pretty brunet bride-elect will be central figure at the luncheon at which Mrs. M. R. Sutherland will be hostess at her home on Peachtree-Dunwoody road.

Mrs. A. E. McCann has selected May 22 as the date of the luncheon at which she will entertain for Miss Wilson. The members of the Beta Phi Alpha sorority will fete the bride-to-be at a buffet supper on May 23 at the home of Mrs. Ray Riddle on Virginia avenue.

Miss Mary Jane Reigel, of Atlanta, and Oliver Pittman Moore, of LaGrange, Ga., were married at 4 o'clock on May 4 at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Walter Reigel.

Miss Lourene Timmons, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. John B. Norton, sang "Because." The ring ceremony, performed by Dr. Louie D. Newton, took place before an improvised altar of ferns and palms. The centerpiece was of white gladioli and valley lilies and a seven-branched candelabra was placed on each side of the altar.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mrs. Franklin Cardwell, of Louisville, Ky., sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Leo W. Reigel Jr. was best man.

The lovely blond bride wore a street length dress of French blue sheer alpaca and her slippers were French blue. A pink hat trimmed with flowers, pink gloves and a bouquet of garden flowers carried by the color scheme of her costume and completed the becoming ensemble.

The matron of honor wore a Royal blue and fuchsia chiffon dress, Royal blue slippers and fuchsia accessories. Her bouquet was of yellow roses.

The bride's mother wore a green and black print dress with white embroidered organdy collar. Her corsage was of Talisman roses.

After the ceremony a small reception was held for members of the immediate families and close friends of the couple. Mr. and Mrs. Moore are residing at 90 Church street in Charleston, S. C.

Miss Kendrick To Be Honored

A series of parties have been planned to honor Miss Edith Kendrick, popular bride-elect, whose marriage to Lieutenant Frank Osmanski will be a social event of June 8.

The first party is the luncheon today at which Mrs. John K. Otley Jr. will entertain.

On Friday of this week Mesdames Elijah Brown, Crawford Barnett and Joseph Brown entertain in her honor, and on Saturday, Miss Nancy Keeler gives a tea at her home on Brighton road.

Mrs. William Noble Benedict gives a party on May 21, and on May 22 Mrs. William Brewster and Mrs. C. W. McQuarrie entertain at Fort McPherson, complimenting the bride-elect.

Miss Jane McMillan has selected May 29 for her party and Miss Ann Scott Harman will be hostess on May 25.

Miss Doris Hendrix Weds Mr. Owens at Church Rites

At a beautiful afternoon ceremony solemnized at 5 o'clock Sunday at the Virginia Avenue Baptist church Miss Doris Hendrix, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norris William Hendrix, became the bride of Gordon Wilcox Owens, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hardy Owens, of Rochelle. Rev. Solomon F. Davis, pastor of the church, read the impressive ceremony, which was witnessed by a throng of friends and relatives of the young couple.

Graceful floor baskets filled with white gladioli formed the keynote of the church decorations, the flowers being silhouetted against a background of palms. Interspersing the altar of palms were floor standards topped with cathedral candelabra holding burning white tapers. The pews reserved for members of the bridal couple's families were marked with clusters of gladioli tied with white satin ribbons.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. C. S. Connell at the organ, and Miss Alice Connell, soloist.

Ushers were Norris William Hendrix Jr., brother of the bride, and James Alfred Boyd. The groomsmen were William Hardy Owens, brother of the groom, and Wade McClintock Mayo was Mr. Owens' best man.

Miss Margarette Hendrix, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Hendrix, Mrs. Gordon Wilcox Owens, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Hardy Owens, parents of the groom.

After the reception Mr. Owens and his bride left for a wedding trip to the Shenandoah Valley. Mrs. Owens wore a traveling ensemble of blue and white, with matching accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Owens will make their home in Atlanta upon their return.

Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Hendrix were the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wilcox Owens, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Hardy Owens, parents of the groom.

Miss Forbes To Wed Mr. Buck On June 8 at Afternoon Rites

The chapel of the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church will form the setting on June 8 for the marriage of Miss Frances Forbes and her fiancé, Robert Sparrow Buck, the ceremony to be solemnized at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Plans for the wedding are announced for the first time today.

Dr. Louie D. Newton will perform the ceremony and music will be presented by Mrs. Charles Chalmers and Mrs. Christopher Hebert.

Mrs. Claire Vann, sister of the groom, will be matron of honor, and Mrs. D. E. Lunsford will be bridesmaid.

Mr. Buck has chosen D. E. Lunsford for his best man, under to be Jube Lewis and Marcellus Forbes Jr., brother of the bride-elect.

After the ceremony Dr. and Mrs. Forbes, parents of the bride-to-be, will entertain at a reception at their home on St. Louis place for members of the wedding party, close friends and out-of-town guests.

Initial parties planned for Miss Forbes includes the linen shower at which Miss Julia Cowles will entertain on Thursday at her home on South McDonough avenue.

Mrs. E. S. Lanier Jr. and Miss Elizabeth Coven will be hostesses Saturday at a miscellaneous shower at the home of the former on Scott boulevard in compliment to the bride-elect.

Additional parties planned for the betrothed couple will be announced later.

Miss Dixie Hurt Miller Weds J. F. Gee Jr. at Church Rites

The Gordon Street Baptist church was the scene yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock of the marriage of Miss Dixie Hurt Miller, daughter of Mrs. Georgia H. Miller, to J. Forrest Gee Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Gee. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Thomas F. Harvey.

The altar was banked with palms and ferns and seven branched candelabra, holding lighted tapers. Placed in front was the white satin Prie Dieu, upon which the couple knelt. Urns of calla lilies completed the decorations. Pews for the family were marked with calla lilies tied with white tulle.

A program of music was presented by Miss Marietta Faust, organist, and Mrs. Arnold Vickery, soloist.

Ushers were George Caldwell, Courtland Sorrells, Gordon Barrow, Frank Miller, Carl Aycock and William Thompson.

Miss Prentiss McIntyre, maid of honor, and Mrs. Harold Langford, aunt of the bride, who served as matron of honor, were gownned alike in dresses of bon bon pink net over matching tulle, made along old-fashioned lines, with very full skirts and tight-fitting bodices. The necklines featured net Berthas, trimmed in lace and short puffed sleeves edged with lace. They carried nosegays of pastel shades of roses, snapdragons, and delphinium.

The bride wore a gown of white tulle, made with a bouffant skirt, from which the long train extended. The bodice featured a high yoke effect, trimmed in orange blossoms, huge puffed sleeves and tight-fitting waistline, also trimmed in orange blossoms. Her veil of illusion tulle was made in tiers, with orange blossoms forming a halo effect. She carried a white Bible centered with an orchid and showered with white satin ribbon and valley lilies. Her only ornament was a single strand of pearls, a gift from the groom.

The bride's mother was gownned in dilph blue triple sheer crepe, with navy hat and accessories, with a corsage of pink roses and valley lilies.

The bridegroom's mother chose for the occasion a light blue sheer redingote model, with which she wore white accessories and a cors

MARS GRINS contentedly at the goings-on in Rotterdam, Holland, where some of the heaviest battling of the latest blitzkrieg has been raging. This is a view of a section of the Maas river.

DEADLY SURPRISES await German troops as, and if, they make their way deep into Holland. Shed at left hides a gun emplacement, though you'd never suspect it, would you?

AP

ALL SET to unleash a chattering stream of death into the midst of unsuspecting German troops are these tense Dutch soldiers, peering out of the firing port of their cleverly hidden gun emplacement.

AP

G-R-R-R! If any of those German fellas want to visit Holland, they'd better go some way besides this, for these Dutch warriors are waiting grimly behind their machine gun, and, take it from them, they mean strictly one hundred per cent business. Ask 'em if you have doubts.

TOO BAD But that's the way war is these days. It's tough on the civilians back home. Here relief workers haul away a victim of German bombs dumped on Nancy, France. Many civilians were killed in Nazi raids.

READY TO REIGN Here, all scrubbed in preparation for donning their best finery, are the nation's youngest quadruplets: Geraldine, Jeanette, Joyce and Joan Badgett. The blue-eyed, 15-month-old tots reigned as the sweethearts of the Oleander Festival at Galveston, Texas, yesterday. The day might have been a nerve-racking one in many places, but to these little girls it was an occasion of joy and fun.
